—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MUSSOLINI, perhaps, will be glad to hear that, for the first time in history, an Italian is heavyweight prize fighting champion of the world. Primo Carnera, whom the dramatic reporters call "the man mountain," hit Sharkey hard enough to knock him unconscious.

There are many champions of other kinds in Italy's history, Caesar, in war; Michelangelo, in painting, sculpture and architecture; Verdi, in music; Marconi, in science; Marcus Aurelius, in wise, benevolent government, and Mussolini himself, champion dictator of all time.

Adding a prize fighting champion to the list adds little. Any one of ten thousand gladiators, names forgotten, that fought to amuse ancient Rome, could have made short work of Sharkey and Carnera.

SECRETARY SWANSON, of our Navy, determined that Uncle Sam's Navy shall be "second to none," promises to build airplanes "to the full complement." Airplanes and submarines will decide future wars. Floating ships are airplane targets, except fast cruisers, useful to destroy enemy floating commerce.

SECRETARY SWANSON should inspect plans of the latest military air-boat built by the British, exhibited at the recent air pageant. The world's most powerful airship, able to land and navigate on rough water, it is the fastest ever built, except actual racing craft.

COURTLAND SMITH, an intelligent young man, wonders why government does not "put the Army to work looking for gold." He surmises accurately that soldiers would be more useful, prospecting for gold on mountain sides and in streams, than they are parading up and down Governors Island, in New York Harbor, or parading somewhere else uselessly.

There is unlimited gold in the United States and Alaska and it has never been systematically sought or discovered, as it might be by Army men directed by Army engineers.

THE ARMY would cost no more to keep and would more than pay for their keep if employed prospecting for mineral wealth on behalf of the government, and "soldiering for Uncle Sam" would take on a new charm if soldiers were allowed to share the results of their prospecting, as they should do.

Why keep the thousands of soldiers monotonously and uselessly doing nothing, when they might be profitably and happily employed?

President Roosevelt's brain trust might think about that, making the Army not only self-supporting but a profit producer.

The Navy could co-operate, using its transports to carry men to different points on the coast, particularly the Alaskan coast.

THE CANADIAN government gives all possible encouragement to gold research, and as a result Canada is producing more gold than the whole of the United States.

True, gold is no longer money, in America, but its possession still pleases. It would do no harm for the United States to have ten or twenty billion dollars worth of gold, instead of, as at present, merely a little more gold than any other country.

MRS. ELLA A. BOOLE, president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, deploring the approaching repeal of prohibition, offers a plan. She will ask the W. C. T. U. to begin a strenuous campaign for "VOLUNTARY abstinence from liquor."

That is the best plan, since it has been shown that COMPULSORY abstinence from liquor does not work.

The fact is that the country had been growing steadily more temperate ever since the day when Thomas Jefferson remarked that whisky killed one-half the men and ruined their families, and urged the government to encourage the drinking of light beer.

DEALERS IN exchange, who profess to know just what the dollar is worth from day to day, decided at the close of business yesterday that it was worth 79.39 cents. Much to their surprise the dollar, which refuses to be stabilized, went up yesterday while foreign money went down.

To say that the dollar is worth 79.39 cents in gold doesn't mean anything. A dollar is any other piece of money is worth what it will buy. The "off the gold standard" American dollar wisely spent now will buy several times the value in gold of any dollar.

WISE JAPAN, invited to stabilize the "yen," says the suggestion will be considered by the mikado's government "if and when" the United States and France manage to stabilize their own currencies.

In the "big war" Japan sent a few acute "observers" to look around and pick up information, the first taken what she learned from Germany, in the past.

That country of ancient samurai and shoguns, and modern scientists, is not to be hurried.

'JAKE THE BARBER' KIDNAPED BY GANG

U. P. REBUT DENOUNES FARLEY

Charges 'Coercion' On Repeal, And to Rich on Tax

The United Presbyterian today criticized Postmaster General James A. Farley for coercing party workers to work for repeal and for making his appeals on a revenue-bait basis to allow millionaire income tax-dodgers to escape taxes.

The criticism of Farley's appeal was contained in a report of the committee on reform, into the General Assembly in session First United Presbyterian Church, Oakland. It stated in part:

"We emphatically denounce the coercion efforts of Postmaster General Farley, chief dispenser of patronage, sending letters to all party workers within his party, urging them to work for repeal. Such methods clash with the fundamental principles of our republic. Is it the purpose of the party to relieve the millionaire tax dodger from payment of income taxes by putting it on the backs of the poor, who would most of the drink bill? Or is it to be an effort to bring the entire United States under domination and control of a liberal group who will break down our every safeguard with financial and political support of the liquor interests? What is the purpose we decry and denounce these undemocratic practices."

The report petitioned Congress to send the stop-alien amendment to the Constitution to the states for ratification, so that Congressional districts would be based on a census of actual citizens rather than on citizen and alien population; deplored the growing divorce peril; urged a pulpit campaign against the sports and commercial interests who would tamper with the Sabbath.

It commended world peace, urged a world court, efforts towards disarmament and peace conferences, and condemned jingoism. It also urged that the schools add a course teaching the bad effects of alcohol and narcotics.

Balbo Flier Killed in Crash; Armada Reaches Amsterdam

International News Service.

AMSTERDAM, July 1.—(INS.)—Tragedy marred the start of Italy's mass flight across the ocean from Orbetello to Chicago when one of the 25 seaplanes overturned on the armada's arrival in the Zuider Zee today.

One member of the craft's crew was missing and believed drowned. The accident occurred when the pilot was too sharp a descent, causing his plane to nose over in the water.

With the exception of this mishap the first 870-mile hop of the impressive flight was carried out according to schedule. The planes dropped down at intervals, taxiing to anchorages at the seaplane base under the direction of Gen. Italo Balbo, Italian air minister and commander of the expedition.

The plane which overturned was the I-Dini, commanded by Capt. Mario Baldini. The craft was reported completely wrecked.

One member of the crew was seriously injured when the plane struck the water. He was fished out and rushed to a hospital. The other members, including Baldini, were slightly hurt. A frantic search was made for the missing man, but fears were expressed that he had drowned.

WRECKED PLANE'S CREW

According to a list given out in Rome before the flight began, the members of Baldini's crew were Lieut. Covelli, co-pilot; Signor Quintavella, mechanic, and a radio operator named Jania. But Dutch authorities understood the plane carried one other man, who was listed as missing.

Although Italian authorities refused to give any information regarding the accident, local medical authorities stated definitely one man was dead.

While the work of anchoring the planes was in progress, a

BOLT KILLS 2 PITTSBURGH YOUTHS

Third Forest Worker Injured; Homes of Needy Saddened

A bolt of lightning killed two Pittsburgh youths at the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Pine Grove Furnace last night and burned a third.

Six others met a similar fate throughout the state, a girl and boy, sweethearts, and an elderly man in Philadelphia; a farmer and his nephew in Greensburg, and a man in Wilkes-Barre.

HIT TIEING TENT

The Pittsburgh youths killed at the Forest Army camp were Robert O. Armstrong, 23, of 1902 East Ohio street, and Herman B. Chuderewicz, 20, of 320 Hancock street. Lawrence McGuire, 21, of 3520 Butler street, is in the hospital with burns from the flash.

The three left the mess hall when a storm broke last night to tie down their tent. The flash from the skies struck the tent pole. Hours of work by the Army medical field service failed to revive the two.

Tragedy, which through unemployment and depressed conditions has not been unknown at the homes of the youths, was more bitter because they were the only support of their families—and were expected home for the July 4 holidays.

SUPPORTED FAMILY

Armstrong was virtually the only support of his widowed mother, Mary H. Armstrong, and four brothers and sisters. He was the eldest, and the youngest is 15. He sent home $25 a month of his $30.

Herman Chuderewicz likewise was virtually the only help to his aged parents, Simeon, 69, and Sophia, 65, who operate a little

REALTY BROKER DIES BY BULLET

George B. Hess, 58, of 256 South Winebiddle avenue, well-known East Liberty real estate broker, was found dead today in his automobile in Highland Park, a bullet through his temple.

Homiside detectives said Hess apparently had ended his life as a result of ill health. A revolver with a coin bag wrapped around the butt, one chamber discharged, rested in his right hand.

Another coin bag with a hole made by the bullet was on the floor. A puzzling circumstance was that Hess had been shot through the left temple. Detectives said he had placed the muzzle in the bag presumably to avoid being burned by revolver powder.

The body was found in the rear seat of the car by Hess' brother-in-law, R. A. Franz, of 6925 Meade street, who had been seeking him since last evening. Hess had been reported to police as missing. His car was parked on Lake Road drive back of the zoo.

The car, as it was found, with Hess' body in the rear seat, was driven to the morgue by a deputy coroner.

MOB STRIKES TWICE AT FAMILY

Millionaire Seized Near Chicago Roadhouse

International News Service.

CHICAGO, July 1.—For the second time this year, kidnapers today struck at the family circle of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, boldly abducting the multi-millionaire stock promoter as he was leaving the Dells cafe with a gay party.

A band of gunmen, numbering between 12 and 15, seized Factor from the side of his 19-year-old son, Jerome, and whisked the internationally-known stock wizard away in one of two automobiles.

Jerome was kidnaped for $50,000 ransom last April 13.

WIFE WITNESS

The gunmen wheeled alongside the Factor party this morning and halted their cars as they were leaving the swanky roadhouse after a night of revelry. Three automobiles made up the party, the high financier, now fighting extradition to England in connection with stock promotions, and riding in the second car.

Brandishing shotguns, sub-machine guns and pistols—the gangsters forced Factor and Al Marstein, wealthy attorney and investment broker, to accompany them.

They made no attempt to harm the youth, who recently was held captive for eight days. Neither did they pay any attention to the women members of the party.

The gunmen blindfolded their two captives, and the two high-powered cars roared away. Three miles further on, when the kidnapers apparently had decided which was their intended victim, they liberated Epstein, warning him not to spread the alarm.

FACTOR MAKES PLEA

As Epstein was leaving the car, Factor pleaded from behind his blindfold:

"This is a kidnaping, Al. For God's sake, do whatever they tell you to and get them anything they ask. It looks like a long ride."

Epstein informed authorities and immediately made his way to his home here and began organizing friends by telephone in a movement to free Factor.

The attorney refused to affirm a report that Murray Humphries, present kingpin of the rackets, has again been enlisted to treat with the kidnapers to bring about the stock promoter's release.

It was Humphries and five other leading members of the old Al Capone gang who acted as a "secret six" three months ago to comb gangland for Factor's son.

Police began a search early today for the Touhy gang of "cowboys," a rough and ready mob that rules the beer and gambling rights in the northwest outskirts of the city.

HOLDUP MAN ATTACKS BRIDE

Nick Ceceri, 27, of 523 McDonald street, was forced to stand by helplessly early today as his bride of four months was mistreated by a Negro gunman in Thomas boulevard, according to a police report.

The attack occurred after the gunman had robbed the couple of 80 cents. They were walking in Braddock avenue when the Negro leaped from behind a tree with a gun in his hand. Mrs. Ceceri told police she was ordered to turn over the contents of her husband's pockets to the gunman, but withheld $20.

After the robbery, the couple was forced to walk into a field in Thomas boulevard, a block away.

Mrs. Ceceri was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital. Physicians, after an examination, reported she had not been injured.

The couple will honeymoon for two months in Venice before returning to Hollywood.

Roosevelt, Jr., To Sail Wednesday

NEW YORK, July 1 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, son of the President, will begin his vacation trip to Europe next Wednesday, sailing with two Groton schoolmates on the liner Washington.

Accompanying him will be George Whitney, Jr., Westbury, L. I., and Drexel Biddle, Jr., of Philadelphia.

'Three-Gun' Wilson Ousted As Dry Officer

Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson, former local deputy prohibition administrator who conducted raids on the Amen Corner and at Indian Mound and the Boat night club here, has been dropped from the rolls of the prohibition department.

His name was among more than 150 given out by the prohibition department as having been furloughed or dismissed.

This is the second piece of bad luck Wilson has had this month. Three weeks ago he won his fight to escape a prison sentence when the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld Judge John P. Nields, of Wilmington, Del., who cited Wilson for contempt of court.

While working in Pennington, Wilson raided the headquarters of the Democratic League of Delaware. The legality of the raid was questioned in court when Wilson refused to tell who gave him a key to enter the club.

In the high court's opinion it was stated that Judge Nields must set a definite sentence or fine. For the last several months Wilson has been working in Nebraska.

John D. Pennington, administrator for Pennsylvania and New Jersey, who for several years made his headquarters in Pittsburgh, is to be retained.

Radio Doctor Loses Long Fight

The Supreme Court has decided that when Dr. J. E. Johnston took money from patients for "cures" administered by "radio waves" from a set that didn't function, he was obtaining money under false pretenses.

Thus ended three years of litigation—almost to the day—since detectives raided Johnston's office at 501 Liberty building, East Liberty, on May 29, 1930.

He promised to cure Detective David Drexler's 'sister," but Drexler has no sister. So Johnston was arrested.

Allegheny River Victim Recovered

KITTANNING, Pa., July 1.—The body of Attorney William M. Heilman, drowned Thursday night when the boat in which he was riding was caught in the maelstrom below Dam No. 7 was recovered today.

Friday night men in boats dragged the river without avail. Mike Hollabaugh and Walter Neal today saw the body floating in the river and pulled it ashore.

DERBY AIRMAN BADLY HURT

INDIANAPOLIS, July 1.—(AP.)—Russell Boardman, one of a half dozen fliers racing from New York to Los Angeles, was badly injured here today when his plane nosed over as he was taking off after a brief stop here.

Russell Thaw, of New York, son of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, arrived in Indianapolis at 9:04 a. m., but dropped out of the race when the left wing of his plane was damaged in landing.

WICHITA, July 1.—(AP.)—Col. Roscoe Turner, of Los Angeles, appeared to be leading today at this halfway point in the east-west transcontinental air race. He landed here at 10:59 a. m. (Pittsburgh time) and was away three minutes later after a speedy refueling.

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—(AP.)—James Wedell, of Patterson, La., flying in the trans-continental air race from New York to Los Angeles, landed at Lambert-St. Louis Field at 9:45 a. m. Pittsburgh time today and left six minutes later after refueling.

Miss Amelia Earhart, who had planned to make no stop until she reached Wichita, ran short of gasoline and landed here at 10:45 a. m. to refuel. She took off 20 minutes later.

Prices Surge Forward on Markets

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP.)—Financial markets swung upward buoyantly today following administrative reiteration that dollar stabilization is still barred notwithstanding reported plans to curb currency speculation abroad.

Stocks were turned over in large volume at gains of $1 to as much as $11 a share. Wheat, corn and oats leaped forward with advances of 1 to more than 3 cents a bushel, cotton rallied more than $1 a bale. Speculative bonds displayed renewed strength and foreign exchanges regained portions of their recent losses.

The British pound sterling advanced 6¾ cents to a cable rate of $4.34¼, French francs were up .09 of a cent at 5.04½ cents, and the gold currencies of Holland, Belgium and Switzerland were equally strong.

In rapid-fire stock trading, with the ticker running several minutes behind floor transactions, Allied Chemical got up to about $11 a share to $126. Other issues up $1 to $3 included Union Pacific, Lackawanna, Celanese, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, United Aircraft and General Motors.

Owney Madden Ends Term at Sing Sing

Hitler to Quit Catholic Faith for New Church

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP.)—The Rev. Ludwig Mueller said today that Chancellor Adolf Hitler will join the new National Evangelical Church of Germany and waive his Catholic faith as soon as the Rev. Mr. Mueller's work of reorganizing German Protestantism has been completed.

He made this announcement to a group of three pastors of the Bodelschwingh faction who appealed to him to rescind his order that thanksgiving services be held in the churches tomorrow, with the display of Nazi and state flags.

The Rev. Frederick Von Bodelschwingh recently was elected bishop of the reich by church groups, winning out over the Rev. Mr. Mueller, the Nazi candidate, who subsequently was designated to reorganize the Protestant faith.

The Rev. Mr. Mueller asserted Chancellor Hitler will urge German Catholics to join the new church.

This announcement was made after the venerable president of the reich, Paul Von Hindenburg, himself a strong Evangelical churchman, called upon the chancellor to compose the differences between the government and Evangelical churches.

Protestant church circles generally believe the change of faith will cause a dramatic feature of the nationwide celebration of Martin Luther's four hundredth birthday anniversary October 10.

8,050 GET PAY RAISE AS DISTRICT INDUSTRY SPEEDS UP

FRICK MINERS GIVEN SECOND INCREASE

Big Steel Companies Working Shifts Until Midnight

Pay increase for 8,050 miners and increased working time for another 500, with speeded production in coal and steel industries to permit a holiday next week were highlights of increased industrial activity.

A 10 per cent pay increase affecting 6,000 miners becomes effective today in the H. C. Frick Coal Company's workings, their second increase in 30 days. Two other companies announced similar increases, the Buckeye Coal Company, affecting 550 men in the Nemacolin mine, and the Republic Steel Corporation affecting 1,000 men in the Republic and Earight mines.

The Puritan Coke Company, next week begins operating on a six-day basis affecting 200 men. All the plants are in the Fayette-Greene County districts.

The Sharon Coal and Limestone Company, subsidiary of the United Sates Steel Corporation, today raised the wages of 500 miners 11 per cent.

To allow for the holiday next week, the New Castle and Shenango works of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, will work until midnight tonight, resuming Sunday midnight and working until Monday midnight.

West Leechburg Steel Company will work all day Sunday in order to have a holiday on Tuesday.

Coal was being hauled today from the Mohican mine of the Allegheny River Mining Company after a shutdown of months. About 250 men entered the mine this morning.

Pennsy Railroad Recalling 1,000 as Traffic Mounts

More than 1,000 Pennsylvania Railroad employes will have returned to work in the Pittsburgh district within a week, officials announced today. Promise of additional work came with the company's approval of a program for repairing 505 box and gondola cars at Pitcairn.

Two hundred and fifty will be brought back from furlough to make these cars available for handling steel, tin plate, grain and other commodities. They will be put on a five-day week, eight-hour-a-day schedule, according to railroad officials.

REPAIRS SPEEDED

During the past two weeks, 250 shopmen have returned to work Pittsburgh and Cleveland dis- ts to do light running repairs freight and locomotives, line with the company's stead- increasing freight demands. The number of engines in this ritory scheduled for heavy re- rs at the Altoona works also s been increased for July. As traffic demands have war- nted, additional switching, yard d road crews have been recalled m furlough within the past nth. Approximately 500 engine- en and trainmen have returned duty in this region since May 5.

STEEL WAGES RAISED

An enlarged program of summer track maintenance has brought 350 men back to work this month, with prospects for the recall of several hundred additional men during July, according to officials.

Twenty-five hundred employes of the Allegheny Steel Company at Brackenridge will share in a 5 per cent wage increase which goes into effect tomorrow. Operations during May and June resulted in the first profits for the company for several months, according to officials.

Carnegie Steel Company has added another open hearth furnace at the Farrell plant, making 10 that are active there. This plant is now on its biggest operating schedule in the past three years.

Jeannette Workers End 10-Day Strike

JEANNETTE, Pa., July 1.—The 10-day strike of 300 employes of the Jeannette Glass Company for increased wages and better working conditions ended last night.

The strikers voted to accept the offer of Vice President Charles P. Mills of a pay increase of approximately 20 per cent. The plant will resume Wednesday.

grocery, but who barely survive because their trade is scant and six other children are unemployed.

James McGuire, 48, and Mrs. Margaret McGuire have hopes that their son will recover. There are six other children, ranging from 13 to 6 years.

The father was a mine foreman at Kinlock mine. In 1929, during an explosion at the mine, he was trapped, but led 40 miners to safety, and can show a Holmes medal for his bravery. But he hasn't worked since—for more than three years. Mr. McGuire said he, too, as a boy, was hit by lightning.

More showers but little relief appeared the likely menu for the week-end in Western Pennsylvania.

Carl Carter, 14, of 2822 Englert street, Baldwin Township, was drowned in the Monongahela River near Becks Run late yesterday. He was washed off a log by waves from a passing steamer.

It brought the total drownings of the month to 30—a record for deaths from heat and water, according to the Coroner. Nine were victims of prostration. With 11 days in June above 90, a new heat record was also made, Weatherman W. S. Brotzman declared.

TWO KILLED ON FARM

John Kane, 44, and Devliner Fennel, 18, his nephew, were killed and Hobart Kane, 17, a son, was injured by a bolt of lightning which struck them on their farm in Salem Township, Westmoreland County. A dog beside them was killed.

Four head of cattle on the farm of Mrs. J. W. Johnson, near New Alexandra were killed by a bolt, and the barn of John Kelly, nearby, was set aflame, resulting in death to four horses, a calf and a dog.

Patrolman Ralph Henderson was sent to identify two youths, a boy and girl, in the Philadelphia Morgue, victims of lightning. He found one to be his daughter, Anna, 16, and the other her sweetheart, Thomas Blythe, the same age.

STATE OIL MEN BALK AT CODE

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 1.—(INS.)—An oil industry code, prepared in Chicago last week in conformity with the national recovery act, today had failed to win approval of the Pennsylvania Grade Crude Oil Association, in convention here.

Strenuous opposition from the independents resulted in a withdrawal of the motion for its approval.

While declining to sanction the entire code, the association approved the section which regulates hours of labor and wages, drilling, and production.

HARRISBURG, July 1.—(INS.)—By a unanimous vote, a tentative code of fair competition governing the retail distribution of commodities today had the approval of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association, convened here for a special membership meeting.

Australian Premiers Agree on Wheat Cut

SYDNEY, Australia, July 1.—(AP.)—Premiers of Australian states agreed on a plan to restrict wheat exports during a meeting with the central government today, it was learned authoritatively.

The meeting, which lasted all day, was called to consider a wheat acreage reduction scheme discussed by representatives of the four major wheat exporting countries at the World Economic Conference.

LONDON, July 1.—(AP.)—Japan, New Zealand and Venezuela today accepted the truce on tariff changes. The latter two expressly reserved the right to cancel the agreement after August 31, with a month's notice.

RUSSIA FREES BRITONS

LONDON, July 1.—(INS.)—Leslie Thornton and William Lionel MacDonald, two of the British engineers whose arrest and trial as spies and wreckers led to a break in commercial relations between Britain and Russia, were released in Moscow today, according to the London Evening Standard.

Britain is prepared to remove the embargo on Soviet goods as a result of the release of Thornton and MacDonald, but the boycott will remain in effect until they leave Soviet territory.

TEXTILE TRADE READJUSTING INDUSTRY

Agreement on Code to Place 100,000 Back at Work

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(AP.)—Cotton textile makers today began the tremendous task of adjusting their organizations to the code of competition, effective perhaps on July 17, by which 100,000 idle are to be put back to work.

Their efforts were spurred by official commendation of the voluntary agreement guaranteeing minimum wages of $12 a week in the South and $13 in the North for not more than 40 hours work.

The job-spreading results from the 40-hour week—it will take more men to do the same work if all work less than at present.

This was the first such agreement reached by one of the Big Ten industries under the National Recovery Act. If President Roosevelt approves by Monday, it becomes effective July 17. If not, it applies the second Monday after he does.

Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, already is considering some comparatively minor points yet to be worked out. But indications were that the code would receive his early indorsement.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Rep. Kelly, (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, said yesterday that a Newark, N. J., auto accessories firm plans to present an agreement to the industrial recovery administrator, to prevent price-cutting of trademarked merchandise.

If the agreement between the manufacturer and dealers were approved, Kelly said, his 20-year battle to legalize price-fixing of manufacturers would be won.

PINCHOT GAINS AS UTILITY FOE

HARRISBURG, July 1.—(AP.)—A new chairman of the Public Service Commission takes office today and political observers view the installation as leaving Gov. Pinchot free to wage his 10-year fight on public utilities undistracted by sorties against the commission.

C. Jay Goodnough, of Emporium, was reappointed as a member and chairman of the commission by the Governor yesterday, soon after the Supreme Court in Philadelphia handed down a decision ousting Dr. Clyde L. King from the post.

King, former political friend of Pinchot, was ousted because the State Senate failed to act on his confirmation and the Governor did not reappoint him.

Early next month, formal appointment of Deputy Attorney General Herman J. Goldberg, of Wilkes-Barre, to succeed King as a member of the commission, is expected. Pinchot announced his selection yesterday for the term expiring July 1, 1937.

Treasurer Tax Lien Fee Held Illegal

MERCER, Pa., July 1.—County treasurers are not entitled to the fee of $1 on each tax lien filed, Judge J. A. McLaughry ruled today. The practice is common throughout the state.

The decision was made in a test case brought by County Commissioner Harry Gibson and Jake Goldberg, Sharon councilman.

FRANKLIN BANK COLLECTION COST HIGH

6 Cents Expended for Each $1 Obtained, Report Shows

The administration cost of collecting each dollar from the assets of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company was more than 6 cents during a 15-month period, according to a State Banking Department accounting filed today.

The first and partial account of Banking Secretary William D. Gordon, filed in Common Pleas Court, for the period from September 21, 1931, to December 31, 1932, disclosed expenses, not including investment disbursements, amounted to $69,913.67.

Commenting on the cost of the receivership, George F. Taylor, Jr., fomer special deputy of the banking department and former receiver for the bank, said:

"The records and condition of the Franklin Savings and Trust Company were in far worse shape than those of the other 18 banking institutions for which I was receiver.

"Due to the peculiar nature of the transactions in the bank, it was necessary to delegate a force of investigators to New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Columbus, Cleveland, Youngstown and other cities."

Included in the accounting were items incident to the indictment of Charles A. Bardolph, president of the bank; David Kellerman, of the Agricultural Exchange; Herman Friedman, mortgage dealer, and R. T. Armstrong. The report disclosed payment of $1,000 to Attorney H. R. Phillips, of the District Attorney's office, in drawing informations.

Bardolph was convicted of making false entries in the books of the bank and appealed from a two-year jail sentence and $1,000 fine. The others have not been tried.

Other items detailed expenses in tracing transactions of former City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley and others indicted after the bank crashed.

It was disclosed that Bardolph was paid $260 in connection with administration of the closed bank's affairs. Taylor explained this was before Bardolph became involved in prosecutions.

The appraised value of the bank was given as $1,424,677.54 when the State Banking Department took possession. Income and other gain was given as $118,240.33. Collections for the period totaled $1,058,753.02.

A loss of $7,137.60 through liquidation and operation of the Bellwood Golden Dairy by the receiver was recorded.

An "unexpected $40,000 collection" was recorded, but the details of the collection were not given. The report disclosed disbursement of $1,465.58 in the examination that resulted in recovery of the sum. The report said the examination was "for the purpose of recovery regarding Michael Parrish, Inc."

GOOD DINNERS CAN BE CHEAP

It has been definitely proved by housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity that it is an easy matter to serve a family of four persons a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50.

More than 4,000 women have submitted entries in the Prudence Penny Prize dinner menu contest and it is estimated that 80 per cent of the entries give the specifications for dinners as good, if not better, than are regularly served to the average family of today.

Weekly Contest No. 3 is now on. The cash prizes for this week, as usual, total $100, with $25 as the first prize. Housewives throughout the reading area of the Sun-Telegraph are cordially invited to participate. Entries for Contest No. 3 must be submitted before midnight next Monday night.

There is an entry blank and other information on another page of today's Sun-Telegraph. There is no limit to the number of entries that can be sent in by any one person. If additional blanks are required they may be secured at McCann's, Donahoe's, Triangle, Butler's, Kroger's or Clover Farm.

These contests will be continued as long as the women readers of the Sun-Telegraph show an interest in them. Get ready for Contest No. 4. It starts tomorrow and is on the same question:

"Can four persons be served with a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?"

Don't delay! Send in your entries right away!

PARLEY AWAITS ROOSEVELT MESSAGE

Stabilization Issue Settlement Up to President

LONDON, July 1.—(AP.)—Delegates from gold standard countries waited in vain as the morning hours passed today for word from President Roosevelt on a joint declaration favoring control of currency fluctuations.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, chairman of the World Economic Conference, informed Assistant Secretary of State Raymond Moley that he was ready to call a meeting as soon as a statement from the President was received.

DELEGATES LEAVING

Several of the representatives of gold standard countries, who have waged a relentless fight for currency stabilization or fluctuation control, were planning, however, to take noon trains or early afternoon airplanes for their respective capitals.

It was stated that the delay in hearing from the American executive was due to failure of communication facilities at Campobello Island, N. B., where Mr. Roosevelt is spending a vacation.

Information from Campobello that countries will have to wait for stabilization excited some wonder in conference circles, where the declaration of the French and other gold standard nations was interpreted as not implying stabilization but merely a move to iron out peaks of fluctuations which are regarded as largely speculative.

The suggestion submitted to the President by Moley, his adviser, recommended approval of a monetary formula under which central banks could use their reso- es to prevent extreme changes in monies.

Roosevelt Prepares for Return to Washington

CAMPOBELLO ISLAND, N. B., July 1.—(AP.)—A new fiscal year facing him, his vacation at end, President Roosevelt today prepared for his return to Washington to wrestle with the problems of domestic recovery, meanwhile keeping in touch with the events at the London economic conference.

A reported crisis over currency stabilization at the London parley found the President undemonstrative yesterday as he spent what he expected would be his last day at the Roosevelt family home here before his departure today aboard the cruiser Indianapolis.

Mr. Roosevelt takes a stand pat attitude against any immediate efforts at London to stabilize currency until there is a certainty that money of the various nations has reached true levels.

The American viewpoint was disclosed authoritatively as one of waiting. The President does not consider the stabilization controversy as affecting internal economis and the question may be allowed to simmer for a while until governments which are running behind their budgets fix up their own currency matters.

"LEGS" SLAIN WIDOW 'KNEW TOO MUCH,' POLICE BELIEVE

MRS. DIAMOND LIVED IN FEAR OF GANGLAND

Practiced Shooting, Got Large Sums, Death Reveals

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP.)—Two question marks danced before detectives today after an all-night inquiry into the murder of Mrs. Jack Diamond, 33-year-old widow of the notorious "Legs."

1—Why did the dark haired widow practice marksmanship so intently for several weeks before a killer fired a bullet into her temple after a struggle in her Brooklyn flat?

2—Who sent large sums of money—sometimes as high as $1,000 a week—to Mrs. Diamond, who nevertheless lived in comparative penury in her $45-a-month home?

Strange disclosures followed in quick succession after the widow's body was found last night, sprawled before a little table on which stood three coffee cups, drained to the dregs.

'KNEW TOO MUCH'

The dominant police theory was that the woman, whose gang chief husband was shot to death in Albany, December 18, 1931, was killed because she may have "known too much."

She said:

A theory that she lived in fear was bolstered—seemingly—by her persistent practice with shotgun and rifle. She had been seen in a Coney Island shooting gallery, knocking over rabbits and ducks with round after round of shots. She also visited a trapshooting range.

Inspector George Bishop announced early today that he had found memoranda in her apartment indicating that much money had come into her hands, sometimes $1,000 a week.

HUNT 'FRIENDS'

Police were trying to learn the identity of two "upstate friends" with whom she visited Coney Island early this week.

She was last seen alive early Wednesday, when she left a card party at the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunter, caretakers of the building in which she lived. From early Wednesday until Thursday night lights burned in her apartment. Finally Hunter opened the door.

Mrs. Diamond, dead at least two days, lay on the floor. She had no shoes on her stockinged feet.

Her blue house dress, with red polka dots, was torn in the back, as though she had fought briefly. Everything else was in order.

MIRROR CHIPPED

There was a chip off the mirror, as though a bullet had struck it.

On her dresser was a tinted photograph of Diamond in a silver frame. She had stuck to him while he lived and boasted about him after his death. Even when he turned from her to Kiki Roberts, chorus girl, she clung to him.

When his rivals finally put a fatal bullet into him—after many unsuccessful attempts—he left her penniless. She borrowed money for an eight-foot cross of white chrysanthemums.

Then she went into burlesque and sideshows, capitalizing the Diamond name, and telling audiences of the dangers of a life of crime.

BALBO LANDS; FLIER LOST

Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, noted German airman who has made several flights from Europe to American through the Arctic regions, waited on shore to give Gen. Balbo the beenfit of his advice regarding the Atlantic crossing.

The first of the 25 planes descended on the Zuider Zee at 12:42 p. m., (8:42 Pittsburgh time) after the entire impressive squadron had flown low over the city to the cheers of thousands who thronged the streets.

The plane which overturned was No. 17.

CHEERED BY CROWD

The plane piloted by Gen. Balbo made a perfect landing at 1:02 p. m., (9:02 a. m. Pittsburgh time). The 16 craft which immediately followed him descended gracefully, but the next one made too sharp a descent and nosed into the water.

The armada was accorded an enthusiastic reception by officials of Amsterdam and the Dutch government, as well as thousands of spectators who lined the historic body of water to witness the arrival.

Balbo's expedition covered the 870 miles from Orbetello, Italy, to Amsterdam, in a little over seven hours.

A fair proportion of the population of ancient Amsterdam crowded the dykes along the Zuider Zee to welcome the craft. The harbor had been cleared of all shipping in the vicinity of the airport at Schellingwoude to give the formation ample room.

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

ORBETELLO, Italy, July 1.—Sweeping into the air like giant eagles, the Italian air armada finally got away today on the first leg of its attempted trans-Atlantic formation flight to Chicago.

While the sun rose bright and warm to promise perfect weather, Gen. Italo Balbo, air minister and commander of the flight, gave the signal that sent the 25 seaplanes manned by 115 airmen into the air and north toward Amsterdam, Holland, across the treacherous Alps.

Gen. Balbo himself was the first to take-off from the lagoon at 5:40 a. m. (12:40 Pittsburgh time). The other planes followed at brief intervals, the last rising 18 minutes after the leader.

The intrepid fliers had not been gone long on their great adventure, the first formation flight across the North Atlantic ever attempted, when reports were received here telling of their fast progress.

'ALL WELL' MESSAGE

The first radio message from Gen. Balbo's plane reached here at 6:50 a. m. while the armada was flying over the Ligurian Sea. "All is well," was the message.

Gen Balbo during the first few hours continued to radio his position every five or 10 minutes to the Orbetello base, which had just sent him favorable weather reports.

The armada flew over Genoa shortly after 7 a. m., where crowds gathered in the streets and cheered. Later they were sighted at Milan, headed toward the Alps, which they crossed successfully at about 8:45 a. m.

When the seaplanes passed over the royal summer villa San Rossore near Pisa, Gen. Balbo sent a radio message of salute to the Italian royal family.

The take-off from Orbetello capped a long series of delays owing to bad weather which kept the fliers waiting a month after preparations were complete.

As soon as reports were received, however, that the Alps were at last clear of fog and rain, Gen. Balbo called the pilots together and assembled them in front of the flag at the air base.

All the airmen were in flying kit, and underwent a rigorous inspection. Then the ceremony of saluting the flag was carried out while motion picture cameras clicked. Meantime, assistants loaded the planes with provisions.

FAREWELL SALUTE

The ceremony was brief, because the fliers were anxious to take off. Gen. Balbo spent only a few minutes in front of the flag, giving the Fascist salute. The pilots then entered the launches which took them to the planes in the lagoon.

Motors were started and warmed up. Then Gen. Balbo's plane nosed ahead, shot suddenly across the water and climbed into the air. He then circled above the lagoon, giving the signal for the others to follow one by one.

When all the planes were clear of the lake, the armada headed north in the direction of Genoa, where it was sighted shortly afterward.

The sun came up over Mt. Argentino as the planes rose into the air, glinting silver on the frames. They headed north in perfect flying order in formation of three, led by Balbo's craft.

Orbetello.
Amsterdam.
North Sea.
Londonderry.
Reykjavik.
Cartwright, Labrador.
Shediac.
Montreal.
Chicago.

TWO MEN LEAP FROM BRIDGES

River police today were dragging the Allegheny River for the body of an unidentified man, about 35, who leaped from the Sixth Street Bridge last night.

The man was almost within the grasp of August Lang, 19, of 7 Salter street, and Charles Jesky, 22, of 1063 Spring Garden avenue, as they ran toward him when he climbed the railing and plunged.

The only clue to his identity was a brown felt hat bearing the name of an East End haberdashery.

A youth who police were told was Mike Bobisch, 22, of Monaca, leaped from the Rochester-Monaca Bridge last midnight. Two unidentified women reported the leap to police. The Ohio River was being dragged for the body.

MELLON SUIT DEFENSE FILED

Affidavits of defense raising questions of law were filed in Federal Court yesterday by W. L. Mellon, president of the Gulf Oil Corporation, and four associates, to suits charging evasion of income taxes and seeking recovery of approximately $8,000,000.

The other defendants are George S. Davison, W. J. Guthrie, F. A. Leovy and H. L. Stone. Separate suits by Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Pa., and David A. Olson, of Washington, were filed against Mellon. Knight was the plaintiff against the other four men.

The defendants, represented by the law firm of Smith, Buchanan, Scott & Gordon, asserted the statements of claims do not constitute a cause of action under the statutes of the United States.

The actions are for double the amount of the taxes alleged due the government. The plaintiffs claim they are entitled to half the money recovered.

Circus, Here Two Days, Adds to Holiday Zest

The circus is coming.

While most of the city sleeps early tomorrow, the first of four trains carrying the Ringling and Barnum and Bailey circus will draw into Pittsburgh from Buffalo. The other trains will follow at intervals.

At 2 p. m. Monday barkers will be heard at the East Liberty grounds, Fifth and Penn avenues, shouting:

"Step right this way, ladies and gentlemen, for the biggest show on earth, now starting. Step right this way."

And "the biggest show on earth" will be under way to delight thousands of children—and dads who only go to circuses, they say, "for the sake of the kids."

The second performance starts at 8 p. m. Monday. Doors will be open at 1 and 7 p. m. The circus will remain here Tuesday to add to the Fourth of July pleasures of child and grown-up. The Tuesday performances will be at the some time as those on Monday.

SERGE TO TRAIL N. Y. GIRL

By CAROL X. WELD

PARIS, July 1.—(Universal.)—Serge Mdivani, Prince of Georgia and brother of Prince Alexis Mdivani, who recently married heiress Barbara Hutton, is planning to leave shortly for America to pursue his courtships of Diana Guest, of New York, it is learned.

His romance and marriage with Mary McCormic, Chicago opera star, publicly on the rocks, Serge courted Miss Guest assiduously during the busy days prior to his brother's marriage here to the Woolworth heiress.

Serge is said to be desolate since Miss Guest left for America. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Guest and sister of the polo-playing Guests, Winston and Raymond.

FREED IN DEATH OF HUSBAND

TOWSON, Md., July 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Janice A. Mick was acquitted of the murder of her husband by a jury in Baltimore County Circuit Court here last night.

Mrs. Mick was charged with having shot her husband June 9 at their Darlington, Md., home. She confessed shooting him as she returned from a visit to the home of her mother in Lancaster, Pa., when, she said, he approached her threateningly.

Tht 300 persons in the courtroom broke into a demonstration as the verdict was rendered.

ROBBER POSES AS INSPECTOR

Employes' lockers in three downtown restaurants were looted within an hour yesterday afternoon by a man who gained access to the basements of the places by representing himself as an inspector for the Duquesne Light Company, according to city detectives.

In Dimling's restaurant, 22 Graeme street, he rifled the lockers of three employes, obtaining $11 in cash and a watch valued at $20. From the chef's locker in the Mirror restaurant, 1007 Liberty avenue, the pseudo inspector obtained $7.50 in cash and $21 in cash and a wrist watch from the lockers of two waitresses in Nick's restaurant, 408 Third avenue.

Lady Astor's Daughter To Wed Titled Briton

LONDON, July 1.—(AP.)—Phyllis Nancy Astor, the only daughter of Viscount and Viscountess Astor, is engaged to Lord Willoughby de Eresby, the son of the Earl of Lancaster and the heir to the title and estates.

Lord Willoughby de Eresby's mother is the former Eloise Breese, daughter of the late W. L. Breese, of New York.

Phyllis inherits her mother's vivacious temperament and energy. She was a keen horsewoman until she was thrown and injured while hunting three years ago. She has been working for two years in the office of a real estate firm in London.

Phyllis, as the daughter of the Viscount, has the complimentary title "The Honorable."

U. S. MAPS NEW EVIDENCE IN VOTE PROBE

Grand Jury Recesses After Indicting J. W. Muldowney

Government prosecutors conferred today on plans for submission of new evidence before the Federal grand jury probing election fraud charges, when it resumes deliberations Wednesday. Attending the conference were Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed, United States Attorney L. E. Graham and the latter's first assistant, James I. Marsh.

After indicting 15 members of three election boards of the Fourth Ward yesterday, the jury recessed until after Independence Day. Among those indicted was Joseph W. Muldowney, brother of Congressman Michael J. Muldowney. He was judge of election in the Third District, Fourth Ward.

The grand jury has indicted 64 persons for alleged election frauds, including State Senator James J. Coyne and some of his close political associates. Most of those indicted are members of election boards.

Assemblyman Patrick J. Maloney, of the Ninth Ward, posted $3,500 bond today, leaving Senator Coyne and Patrick J. O'Malley, Second Ward leader, as the only ones of the Cone group indicted, to give surety.

The jury will continue examination of witnesses summoned from the Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth wards and other places in the Thirtieth Congressional District.

Bench warrants were issued for those indicted yesterday. The other members of the Third District election board, Fourth Ward, indicted with Muldowney, were William Maher and Mary Wagner, inspectors, and Edward Baurhem and Francis Gunshall, clerks.

Others indicted were Chester Basial, judge; William Patton and John Patton, inspectors, and Frank Samson and Edward A. Taylor, clerks, of the First District, Fourth Ward, and James R. Shields, judge; James McTighe and William A. Nordheim, inspectors, and Thomas Holleran and John J. Whalen, clerks, of the Second District, Fourth Ward.

Los Angeles Opens National Air Races

LOS ANGELES, July 1.—(AP.)—The progress of a year in the speed of flying machines unfolds here for four days, beginning today, as the sixth annual competition of the National Air Races gets under way.

The cross-country dash from New York was the first event on the program.

Two Hurt as Auto And Truck Collide

Joseph Altman and George Reed, both of Eugene avenue, Homestead Park, are in the Homestead Hospital today, the latter in a critical condition, with injuries suffered when their machine crashed into a truck at Eighth avenue and Whitaker way, Munhall, according to a hospital report.

CITY POLICEMAN SHOT IN BEER TAVERN

Brother of Fellow Officer Accused In Case

Patrolman Stephen Fenack, reporting to North Side Station, was accidentally shot by a brother of a fellow officer early today in the White Tavern, Babcock boulevard, according to a police report.

The shot was fired, police say, by Charles Redeich, 24, of 1312 Halsey place, who, with five other youths who brought the policeman to the hospital, are under arrest in North Side Police Station.

GROUP ARRESTED

The others arrested said they were Charles Caye, 28, of 2355 Atmore street; John Meyerl, 33, of 2122 East street; Fred Hornberger, 37, of 1415 Marshall avenue; Charles Miller, 27, of 55 Royal street, and Francis Fischer, 24, of 1625 Howard street.

Later police arrested Patrolman Francis Gallagher, 27, of 619 Carson street, who walks a beat adjoining that of Fenack, and Edwin Schmittlein, 31, of 1817 Howard street, alleged proprietor of the tavern.

Capt. John Flavin suspended both Fenack and Gallagher. The prisoners were turned over to county detectives.

Fenack was working last night, Capt. John Flavin explained the officer was permitted to leave his beat at 4 o'clock because he had time coming to him.

Police said they learned Fenack and Gallagher joined the six men early today and went to the White Tavern to drink beer.

STRUGGLE FOR GUN

Thus engaged, Fenack removed the bullets from his service revolver and pulled the trigger several times with the muzzle of the gun close to his head, Capt. Flavin said.

He later replaced the bullets in his gun, and Rediech, who had been away from the table, returned and attempted to draw the officer's gun from its holster, according to Flavin's story. Knowing the weapon was loaded, Fenack struggled with Redeich, and in the struggle Fenack was shot, Flavin explained.

Police are making a further investigation.

The first meeting of the organization was called by Judge Gray.

CHURCH TO HOLD CENTENNIAL

The First Presbyterian Church of Freeport, Pa., will celebrate its centennial anniversary tomorrow with three services during the day. The Rev. David MacMeekin Conn is pastor.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence Edward McCartney, of the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, will preach the centennial sermon at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. The evening service will be in honor of former pastors of the church and the address will be given by the Rev. Harry Campbell, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh. The Rev. W. S. McClure, of the Third Presbyterian Church, Altoona, also will speak.

Former pastors who will participate include the Rev. Clarence E. Houk, of New Concord, Pa., and the Rev. James A. Liggett, Mt. Lebanon.

Miss Margaret Stewart, 97, and Mrs. Mary C. McKee, two of the oldest living members of the church, have attended services regularly.

N. C. T. U. FLAYS AGENT CUTS

MILWAUKEE, July 1.—(AP.)—Whiting Williams, Cleveland social investigator, told the national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union that the wages the worker earns and spends constitute the biggest single factor for the permanent return of prosperity.

Williams contended in his address last night that prohibition was an aid to the worker in keeping this standard.

Criticizing the national administration for the dismissal of prohibition enforcement officers, the convention adopted a resolution declaring the curtailment will react "to the detriment of efficient enforcement" and protesting the action as a "perversion of the very purpose of government."

400 Forest Army Boys Visit Homes

On their first trip home since entering the reforestation army, about 400 boys arrived in Pittsburgh early today from the camp at Sugar Run. They will return July 5.

A second special train will arrive in the Pennsylvania Station this afternoon with 200 from the camp at DuBois and Emporium. The groups are to return late July 4.

Spiritualist Church Continues Services

The Spiritualist Church of God will continue services every Sunday throughout the summer, according to an announcement by Rev. C. C. Cook. Services will be held at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at 305 Eighth avenue, Homestead.

The Story of Queen Esther -:- CHAPTER X -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

King Xerxes punished Haman for his wickedness in planning a death edict for all the Jews by hanging him on the same gallows where Haman had planned to hang Queen Esther's uncle, Mordecai.

The King, desiring to show his gratitude to Queen Esther, presented her with Haman's house, and the Queen in turn presented Haman's house and all of Haman's servants to Mordecai.

The death decree against the Jews, which had been instigated by Haman, was then rescinded, and King Xerxes even went further by issuing a proclamation permitting the Jews to slay their enemies. On this day there was feasting among the Jews throughout the kingdom. It is still celebrated by Orthodox Jews throughout the world, and is known as the Feast of Purim.—THE END.

CAMP MEETING OPENS AUG. 17

The Interdenominational Holiness camp meeting at Ridgeview Park will be revived this year, August 17 to 20. The Rev. C. W. Butler, of Cleveland, president of the National Holiness Association, will be in charge.

Mrs. Millie Rodenbaugh, of Pittsburgh, will direct children's meetings. The Rev. Ralph and Mrs. Lawrence, of Gary, Ind., will aid Dr. Butler and direct the music. The interdenominational services will be devoted to the presentation of religious truths and orthodox teaching.

Located 48 miles east of Pittsburgh, Ridgeview Park may be reached by the Pennsylvania Railroad or by way of the William Penn or Lincoln highways.

BIBLE TEACHER TALKS SUNDAY

William R. Newell, international Bible teacher, will continue his talks on the Book of Romans tomorrow at 3:30 p. m. in the North Presbyterian Church, Galveston and Lincoln avenues, North Side. For a week he has been addressing noon meetings at the First Presbyterian Church, downtown, and evening meetings in the North Church.

Mr. Newell will address the congregation of the Callender Memorial Church in Wilkinsburg tomorrow night. He is scheduled to appear next week on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday in the North Church to complete his series. The meetings are open to all denominations.

FOOD BENEFIT AT WEST VIEW

Hundreds of Pittsburgh housewives were taking advantage today of the low prices in the retail stores for canned goods and standard packages of groceries by buying in quantities, to be exchanged for rides and attractions at the Father Cox Food Benefit scheduled for Monday at West View Park.

Any boy or girl or adult donating 30 cents' worth of food will be given in exchange a strip of eight tickets for the rides and attractions at West View. On top of that the management of the park will donate all the cash receipts of the dance pavilion for the afternoon and 50 per cent of the night receipts to the Father Cox relief fund.

Aside from the regular attractions there will be a big special outdoor program including the "Fearless Falcons," a thrilling aerial act featured at West View for Fourth of July week.

PRIEST TO SING FIRST MASS

The Rev. Ralph L. Hayes, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hayes, 5617 Rural street, will sing his first solemn mass in Sacred Heart Church tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Father Hayes will be assisted by his uncle, the Rev. Ralph L. Hayes, pastor of St. Catherine's Church, Beechview, recently appointed bishop of Helena, Mont.

The Rev. J. Raymond Mulvehill, of St. Anselm's Church, Swissvale, will be the deacon, and the Rev. Paul Giegerich, of St. Basil's Church, will be sub-deacon. Alpheus Reifsnyder will be master of ceremonies. The sermon will be given by the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley.

UNION SERVICES IN WEST PARK

Union church services will open tomorrow at 7:45 p. m. in West Park, North Side, with the Rev. Dr. R. E. Snodgrass, president of the North Side Downtown Ministers' Association, delivering the opening address on patriotism and evangelism.

The services will be representative of 23 churches and the Allegheny Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

A musical program will be given by Will Davis, of the Sandusky Street Baptist Church, aided by the choir of the First Christian Church.

Services will be held each Sunday evening up to and including September 3.

Robert J. Gibson Discusses Assembly

Robert J. Gibson, manager of the Presbyterian Book Store, discussed highlights of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, recently concluded at Columbus, O., at a Wednesday evening prayer meeting in the Bellevue Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Gibson is clerk of session at the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the General Assembly committee on Christian education.

Pastor to Observe 10th Anniversary

The Rev. Adam Boerstler, pastor of Mt. Calvary Luthern Church, McKees Rocks will celebrate his tenth ordination anniversary tomorrow, with the Rev. J. J. Myers, former pastor, preaching the sermon.

Following his ordination at the First Church in Butler, Pa., Mr. Boerstler accepted a call to the New Florence Church. He came to Mt. Calvary March 1, 1931.

Dr. Porkess to Talk At Union Service

The Rev. Dr. William Porkess, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, will be the speaker at the community services tomorrow night in South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, marking the sixteenth successive year of community services. His subject will be "Three Soul Attitudes." The parish vested choir will sing.

Illinois Ratifies Child-Labor Change

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 1.—(AP.)—The Illinois Legislature voted for ratification of the proposed child labor amendment to the Federal constitution.

A joint resolution indorsing the proposed amendment was rushed through both houses last night.

ELECTIONS SCHEDULED AT MEETINGS OF TWO U. P. UNITS

MISSION UNIT BALLOTS ON OFFICERS

Nearly 900 delegates to the Women's General Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church began balloting today on candidates for officers and board members.

Leading candidates are: For president: Mrs. Charles W. Fulton, North Side, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. J. C. Alter, San Francisco. For first vice president were Mrs. William T. Lytle, of Ben Avon and Mrs. T. R. McNary, of Los Angeles. For second vice, Mrs. A. A. Graham and Mrs. A. P. Aiken; for the board, Miss Ida B. Little, Mrs. W. P. Wiegering, Mrs. Arthur B. McBride, Mrs. Edgar Murdoch and magazine committe, Mrs. John P. White, Mrs. W. S. Cook and Mrs. Fannie Moore.

YOUNG PEOPLE ELECTING

Election of a national director was scheduled by the Young People's Christian Union, which yesterday established 25 scholarships for the denomination's five colleges. Five scholarships will be awarded this fall to each of the following institutions: Westminster, Monmouth, Sterling, Tarkio and Muskingum. The scholarships form the special object drive of the union for this year.

The assembly and other groups were confining business sessions to the morning. The church leaders and women's society will visit the Columbia Hospital, the Home for the Aged and the Children's Home at Valencia during the afternoon.

A youths' rally for the young people's group in Syria Mosque tonight follows a boat excursion. Congressman Clyde Kelly will deliver the principal address. The program closes the youths' convention.

UNION SERVICE SUNDAY

Preparations were being completed by 125 elders, who will assist in a union communion service at the Mosque tomorrow afternoon. More than 3,000 church delegates and members are expected to attend.

The closing joint rally will be held at night. The Rev. Dr. S. C. Gamble, of Butler, will mabe the address. The visiting clergymen will be heard in Pittsburgh district pulpits in the morning.

Missionary Magazine To Be Published Here

Pittsburgh today was selected as the future publication headquarters for the Womens Missionary Magazine, official organ of the Womens General Missionary Society, at its meeting in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side.

The magazine, now published at Xenia, O., was founded in 1887 and reaches foreign countries as well as the mission fields.

Financial and general reports on the Junior Missionary and the magazine were heard this morning preceding the election.

Attacking the Laymen's Foreign Mission Inquiry, from which the general assembly yesterday voted to sever connections, Miss Anna A. Milligan, of Philadelphia, said of the standards demanded:

"Would the apostles have qualified? Would any missionary qualify if perfection were demanded? How many would be worthy if only 'best' were accepted?"

Beaver Valley Group Wins Two Trophies

Beaver Valley Presbytery captured two trophies in the Young People's Christian Union interpresbytery contest, winning in both the intermediate and the senior classes. Other winners were: Intermediate—Rock Island and Chartiers; seniors: Delaware and Kiskiminetis.

Conference sessions were held this morning simultaneously for high school and young people groups. The meetings were preceded by a Quiet Hour conducted by the Rev. Vander Meulen.

Religious Training Of Children Urged

Appeal for more religious training of children was made by the Rev. Dr. J. M. Ferguson, Bellevue, at a joint meeting of assembly and women in Syria Mosque. Stressing the need of education, he said there was one United Presbyterian to each eight persons when the church was founded in 1858. The ratio of 1 to 40 is found today, he said.

Tracing the history of religious training when previous to 1787 the lessons were found in the New England Primer until today none is offered in public schools, Dr. Ferguson said:

"We provide money for adult building, for adult music, but none for children—not to teach theology but religion."

The Rev. Dr. R. F. Galbreath, president of Westminster, speaking on "The Church Making Scholars for Christ," said:

"We have sought to make education and religion work together. The colleges of the church, maintained by the church, make scholars for the church. Each generation must provide its own Christian leadership. This makes for a better world tomorrow."

The work that women have done in providing for funds, missionaries and the church was cited by Mrs. J. P. White, of Xenia.

Last night's joint meeting was addressed by the Rev Drs E. C. McCown and R. A. Hutchinson. The former stressed that the people are longing for the "message of the Old Book' and that physical activities and mental development are the "by-products of the church."

ARSON RETRIAL FOR 3 YOUTHS

New trials on a charge of arson have been granted three Lawrenceville youths, Robert Skibecki, Harry Doran and Joseph Schruff, by Visiting Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset County.

They were found guilty by a jury June 6 of causing a small fire at the home of Edward Noftz, 1640 Penn avenue, and not guilty of setting fire to the house of Hyman M. Tiersky, next door, by lighting papers in a passageway between the dwellings.

Two days later the jurors told the court they had confused the numbers on the indictments, returning a verdict of guilt in the case they intended to acquit, and vice versa. Judge Boose fixed $2,500 bail for the defendants.

150 Boys to Leave For Y. M. C. A. Camp

One hundred and fifty boys ranging from 11 to 18 years will leave for the Y. M. C. A. camp Kon-O-Kwee, near Zelienople, Monday morning. George Nichols, camp director, believes that the attendance for the season, which closes August 28, will break records.

Roy Cotten, J. H. Morgart, Paul Slater and Saul Bennett are assistants to Nichols.

Dry Law Failure Charged to States

The states, and not the federal government, are to blame for the troubles under prohibition, the Rev. James L. Crain, secretary of the Board of Temperance Social Welfare, told a meeting at the First Christian Church, Montgomery avenue and Arch street, North Side, last night. The states lack the ability to enforce law, he declared.

E. L. Day, chairman of the National Board, presided.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

One imbiber, who doesn't ask whether the brew is good, gets his information from the card on which aspirin tablets are exposed for sale. These cards are displayed behind almost every bar. When he sees that the proprietor has enjoyed a good aspirin sale he is inclined to believe the brew will give him a headache.

I think Mrs. Sayre hit upon a good idea when she advises Globe Trotter to sew moth fringe on bridge lamps to make the moths skidoo. She also helpfully hints to use cloves to get the ants to skedaddle.

* * *

Mrs. M. E. D. has a different problem. Her cellar has been infested by a white flying ant. The wooden supports in the basement are just alive with these insects. The bug authority believes them to be the highly civilized termite, which eats wood and likes it.

The only thing to do is to replace the wooden pillars with iron ones. This cuts off the approach to the ground. These termites must have unhampered access to the ground to continue their depredations within the woodwork.

For mildew on roses spray with a superfine, not ordinary, sulphur. This remedy might help Mrs. T. S. Loring's nasturtiums, too.

Mrs. I. Morris, of Trafford, has started a sweet potato vine on the back porch and is amazed at the beautiful results. The roots are more fascinating than the leaves.

Place the sweet in a glass of water and change the water every day. Nature does the rest.

1-Hour Show To Replace Baron

By AIRCASTER

With the fadeout of the Baron Munchausen, and Jack Pearl's temporary departure comes a full hour sustaining show, "The Real Perkins Review," to fill the vacuum left by the fold-up.

In the new show, the clever, ether wag will introduce, from time to time, those of the NBC artists whom the stations would like to sell.

* * *

Al Jolson's vindication of himself on the recent Whiteman inauguration has induced a sponsor to play with the notion of bringing Jolson back to the air as a steady diet. The present plan is to give him a full hour in which to stage a three-act musical comedy, especially written for radio.

* * *

Janet Beecher and Olive Wyndham launch a new NBC-KDKA series tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. called "Wisdom of the Ages." The first episode will deal with modern divorce and how Shakespeare handled the problem in "Henry VIII."

* * *

* * *

With today marking his sixtieth WWSW broadcast in 10 weeks as the Hollywood Show Shopper, Walter Framer claims something of a record, proffering the info that in the 60 periods of 15 minutes each—900 minutes in all—he's given 720 reviews . . . which means that each review took little over a minute. Going further, Mr. Framer figures that—at the same rate—he'll have done 3,744 reviews in 4,680 minutes by the end of the year.

NO. 147.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, to enter into an agreement with the Board of Public Education relating to the widening and improvement of Hillsboro street, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue and to the opening and improvement of Hillsboro drive, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, and providing for the payment of the costs, damages and expenses thereof.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, for and in behalf of the City of Pittsburgh, shall be and they are hereby authorized and directed to enter into an agreement with the Board of Public Education relating to the widening and improvement of Hillsboro street, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, and to the opening and improvement of Hillsboro drive, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, and providing for the payment of the costs, damages and expenses thereof, said agreement to be in the following form:

AGREEMENT

MADE THIS ..... day of ..... A. D. 1933, between the Board of Public Education of the School District of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, a municipal corporation of the State of Pennsylvania, hereinafter called the "Board," party of the first part, and the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the State of Pennsylvania, hereinafter called the "City," party of the second part.

WHERAS the Board is the owner of the property on the northerly side of Hillsboro street, between Sheraden boulevard and Chartiers avenue, in the City of Pittsburgh, and

WHEREAS the City of Pittsburgh deems it advisable and necessary to widen Hillsboro street, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, and to open Hillsboro drive, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, and the corporate authorities of the City of Pittsburgh believe that it will greatly be to the interest and advantage of said City and a great saving of expense thereto if said widening and improvement of said Hillsboro street and said opening and improvement of Hillsboro street and said opening and improvement of Hillsboro drive be made with the approval of and under an agreement with the Board

NOW THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH, That for the considerations hereinafter mentioned, the parties hereto do covenant and agree, to and with each other as follows:

FIRST: That Hillsboro street, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, shall be widened by taking for public street or highway purpose the following described property, belonging to the Board, to-wit:—

Beginning at the intersection of the westerly line of Sheraden boulevard and the present northerly line of Hillsboro street; thence extending along the present northerly line of Hillsboro street north 81 degrees 07 minutes west 106.02 feet to an angle in the same; thence continuing along the same north 60 degrees 49 minute west 10.71 feet to the intersection with the northerly line of Chartiers avenue; thence along the northerly line of Chartiers avenue 54 degrees 19 minute west 14.41 feet to a point of curve; thence southeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 60 feet, a central angle of 19 degrees 22 minute 30 seconds, and a chord bearing south 64 degrees 15 second east for an arc distance of 20.29 feet to a point; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 182 feet, a central angle of 46 degrees 48 minutes 30 seconds and a chord bearing north 62 degrees 15 minutes, 25 seconds east for an arc distance of 148.69 feet to a point; thence north 17 degrees 52 minutes east 30.66 feet to a point of curve; thence northwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 120 feet and a central angle of 19 degrees 06 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 40.02 feet to a point of tangent on the westerly line of Sheraden boulevard; thence along the westerly line of Sheraden boulevard south 1 degree 14 minutes 30 seconds east 44.64 feet to an angle in the same; thence continuing along the same south 17 degrees 52 minutes west 118.53 feet to the place of beginning, containing 4,295 square feet.

SECOND: That Hillsboro drive, from Sheraden boulevard to Chartiers avenue, shall be opened by taking for public street or highway purposes the following described property, belong to the Board, to-wit:—

Beginning on the westerly line of Sheraden boulevard at a point of curve distant north 1 degree 15 minutes 30 seconds west 41.64 feet along the westerly line of Sheraden boulevard from the first angle therein north of Hillsboro street; thence extending southwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 120 feet and a central angle of 19 degrees 06 minutes 30 seconds for an arc distance of 40.02 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent south 17 degrees 52 minutes west 30.66 feet to a point; thence southwestwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 182 feet, a central angle of 46 degrees 48 minutes 30 seconds, and a chord bearing south 62 degrees 15 minutes 25 seconds west, for an arc distance of 148.69 feet to a point; thence northwestwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 60.0 feet, a central angle of 19 degrees 22 minutes 30 seconds and a chord bearing north 64 degrees 15 seconds west, for an arc distance of 20.29 feet to a point of tangent on the northerly line of Chartiers avenue, said point of tangent being distant north 54 degrees 19 minutes 00 seconds west 14.41 feet along the northerly line of Chartiers avenue from the intersection of the present northerly line of Hillsboro street and the northerly line of Chartiers avenue; thence along the northerly line of Chartiers avenue by the tangent north 54 degrees 19 minutes 00 seconds west 30.40 feet to a point; thence southeastwardly and northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 10.0 feet, a central angle of 90 degrees 00 minutes 00 seconds, and a chord bearing north 80 degrees 41 minutes 00 seconds east, for an arc distance of 15.71 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent north 35 degrees 41 minutes 00 seconds east 10.60 feet to a point of curve; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 5.0 feet and a central angle of 58 degrees 13 minutes 00 seconds for an arc distance of 4.91 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 142.0 feet and a central angle of 67 degrees 21 minutes 15 seconds for an arc distance of 168.93 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence northeastwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 5.0 feet and a central angle of 80 degrees 12 minutes 45 seconds for an arc distance of 5.60 feet to a point of tangent; thence by the tangent north 88 degrees 45 minutes 30 seconds east 13.52 feet to a point of curve; thence eastwardly and northwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 10.0 feet and a central angle of 90 degrees 00 minutes 00 seconds for an arc distance of 15.71 feet to the place of beginning, containing 7,782.0 square feet.

THIRD: That said Hillsboro street, as widened, shall be re-graded, re-paved, recurbed and otherwise improved and new sidewalks laid and necessary retaining walls built in conformity with the plans and specifications prepared by the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh and approved by the Director of the Department of Public Works of said City and James Bonar, Superintendent of Buildings of the Board of Public Education of the City of Pittsburgh, to the limits shown on said plan.

FOURTH: That said Hillsboro drive, as opened, shall be graded paved, curbed and otherwise improved and necessary retaining walls built in conformity with the plan and specifications prepared by the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh and approved by the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh and James Bonar, Superintendent of Buildings of the Board of Public Education of the City of Pittsburgh, to the limits shown on said plans.

FIFTH: The improvement of said Hillsboro street and Hillsboro drive as set forth in the first, second, third and fourth paragraphs under this agreement, shall be done under a contract or contracts awarded therefor by the City of Pittsburgh after approval of the plans by James Bonar, Superintendent of Buildings of the Board of Public Education of the City of Pittsburgh, pursuant to the Acts of Assembly relating to the same.

SIXTH: The city agrees to rough grade the remaining portion of the property of the board, formerly owned by M. M. Murphy and Crosier & Elicker, in a manner satisfactory to the board and as shown on the plans mentioned in paragraphs third and fourth hereof and to build and maintain the necessary retaining walls along the line of said Hillsboro drive, as opened.

SEVENTH: The city agrees to bear the entire cost and expense of the physical work incident to the widening and improvement of Hillsboro street and the opening and improvement of Hillsboro drive, as provided herein.

EIGHTH: The board agrees to execute and deliver to the City of Pittsburgh deeds of dedication for street purposes for the properties described in paragraphs first and second of this agreement.

NINTH: The city agrees to pay to the board the sum of sixty-six thousand eight hundred sixty-two and eighty hundredths ($66,862.80) Dollars within one year after the date of the execution of this agreement, together with interest thereon at the rate of six (6) per centum per annum; the principal sum being one-half the cost to the board of acquiring the said Mary M. Murphy property and the Crosier & Elicker properties above referred to, on which sum the city shall be entitled to the following credits:

a. The sum of nine thousand forty ($9,040.00) dollars, being the amount of damages awarded against the City of Pittsburgh on account of the vacation of a portion of Supreme way, as shown by the report of the Board of Viewers in connection with said vacation, confirmed by the court at No. 3821 January term 1932 Docket "A" said vacation having been made by the city at the request and for the benefit of the board.

b. The sum of fifteen hundred ($1,500.00) dollars, being the estimated cost to the city of grading the property of the board as provided under paragraph sixth hereof.

TENTH: The city's share of the cost of acquiring the property for the opening of Hillsboro drive in the amount of thirty-

It begins to look as though the social depression were over—with which prospect society, and social writers, are delighted. And for the first time in several seasons the debutante will really have a whirl. To begin with, we are going to have more debutantes this fall than in the past three years. Already the list of those who've definitely decided to come out numbers round 25, and with the business trend upward, by fall this number will undoubtedly be nearer 35.

That times are better there's no doubt; for you'll find that the number of debutantes is always large when times are prosperous, and very small in the past winter, when times were difficult.

Sign of Prosperity

Of course there'll be almost none of the pre-depression ostentation in the entertainments this winter, but the prospect is that everyone is going to have the most carefree and agreeable social season of this fall and winter that the social world has enjoyed in ages.

Another pleasing feature about the list of debs for this fall—so far as all the girls whose parents are planning to bring them out are friends, and have been friends since dancing school days. And that basis of friendship will do more to guarantee the girls a delightful winter than anything else.

Debs All Friends

There's no doubt that a girl can have the most glorious year of her youth if her sister debs are all old friends; but if she is not acquainted with them, no girl can have a more wretched, difficult year.

In case the girls aren't her friends, or their mothers' friends of her mothers, it's heart-breaking for a girl to come out. And it's foolish, too, for her mother to put her in such an embarrassing situation.

For one thing, a debut no more means what it did 15 or 20 years ago. The average debutante nowadays knows all the people to whom she is "introduced" at her coming out party.

Social Custom

The debut is just a survival of the day when a girl until she was presented was very much in the schoolroom. Now in her sub-deb days she goes to dances with the group she'll come out with, and has met all her mother's friends and probably acquaintances, too.

From being a utilitarian formality it has now become just a pleasant custom. All your friends make debuts; so you do, too, usually the same year.

Millvale Pastor, Turtle Creek Girl Wed

At a pretty ceremony on Monday in the Alpha Lutheran Church, Turtle Creek, Miss Dorothy Zischkau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zischkau, of Turtle Creek, became the bride of the Rev. Clarence Daniels, of Millvale, son of Mrs. Jonas Wirick, of South Fork, Ind. Officiating was the Rev. Dr. W. A. Logan, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Roy Sloop, of Christ Lutheran Church, Baltimore. The ceremony took place at 4 o'clock. The church was decorated with ferns, palms and roses, and Mrs. Irvin Pletcher played preceding the ceremony, and Irvin Pletcher sang.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin having puffed sleeves to the elbow, and close-fitting to the wrists. Her veil of tulle and lace was finished with a cap of lace caught with orange blossoms, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Erma Woodburn, wore tea rose chiffon with a matching crepe turban, and the bridesmaids, Miss Martha Bachman in blue chiffon and Miss Twila Long in yellow chiffon, carried garden flowers, as did the maid of honor.

Earl Burtnett was best man and ushers included William Steiner, of Turtle Creek; Howard Walker, of Baltimore; Eugene Boltze, Bertram Kenyon and James Lilly.

Mrs. Zischkau's gown was of beige lace and Mrs. Wirick chose white. Both wore shoulder sprays of roses and delphinium.

There was a dinner and reception in the bride's home for the families. The tables were decorated in pink and white garden flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniels left on a wedding trip which will include a visit to the Chicago Fair, after which they will be at home in Williams street, Millvale.

The bride is a graduate of Slippery Rock Teachers' College and has taught for four years in the Turtle Creek public schools. Mr. Daniels is a graduate of Gettysburg Theological Seminary and has been elected pastor of the Christ Lutheran Church of Millvale.

Audrey Phipps to Make Bow to New York Society

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP.)—The "outdoor bow" is steadily gaining in popularity among Eastern society folk.

Up to the end of the century's first decade tradition demanded that debutantes be presented to society at a formal reception or dinner, preferably at the town residence, and almost always in the winter time.

Later large supper dances in hotels as the background for a debut became "the thing." In the past few years the custom has gradually spread of having smart "coming-out" parties at the country home in the summer.

One of the smartest of these parties will be held Monday evening at the Roslyn, Long Island, country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, who will present their daughter, Audrey, granddaughter of the late Henry Phipps, of Pittsburgh, steel magnate and associate of the late Andrew Carnegie.

Many house parties and dinners at nearby Long Island estates are scheduled in connection with this debut.

Miss Phipps also is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs Ogden Mills and niece of the Countess of Granard (twin sister of Mrs. Phipps) and former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

Guard Veteran Given Medal at Ceremony

Sergt. James A. Gormley, who last May completed 40 years of service with the Pennsylvania National Guard, was decorated with a medal by Col. W. R. Dunlap last night at the regimental day celebration of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery in Hunt Armory.

Lieut. Edward Hawkins presented Col. Eric Fisher Wood with a saber in behalf of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery Veterans' Association.

Boy's Eye Injured By 'Fourth' Torpedo

Another pre-Fourth of July accident was reported yesterday when Teddy Loheyde, 7, of 6014 Hoeveler street, East End, was struck on the eye by a fragment from a torpedo thrown by a young companion.

He was taken to the West Penn Hospital, where physicians said it would require three or four days to determine the seriousness of the injury. He was then sent home.

Mrs. Ralph Harbison is chairman for the federation banquet, which is scheduled for Thursday of convention week, and Mrs. Martin L. Moore is vice chairman. On their committee are Mrs. Lawrence C. Woods, Jr., and Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, the latter in charge of decorations.

Mrs. George S. Baton is to head the hostess committee, with the assistance of Mrs. M. W. Stoner, Mrs. Franklin Bell, Mrs. Robert Wardrop, Mrs. L. I. Leiper, Mrs. George Phelps Rose and Mrs. Alexander Barron.

MUSIC

Lawn Concert and Samuel Di Primio

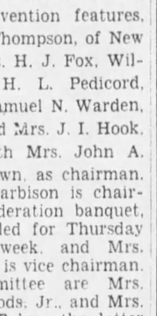
THE PROGRAM

March from Tannhauser ..... Wagner
Overture "Die Fledermaus" (The Bat) ..... Strauss
Aria—"M'appari" (Ah, So Pure) from the Opera "Martha" ..... Flotow
Mr. Di Primio
"Dream Pantomime" from Hansel and Gretel ..... Humperdinck
Melodies from "Strike Me Pink" ..... Brown-Henderson
"Song of the Bayou" ..... Bloom
"Ah, Moon of My Delight," from "In a Persian Garden" ..... Lehmann
Mr. Di Primio
Fantasy from Samson and Delilah ..... Saint-Saens
"Fandango," from "Capriccio Espagnole" ..... Rimsky-Korsakow

The second lawn concert at Schenley Hotel last night proved no less successful than the first in point of music and visitors. The visitors, however, are prone to take the music matter of these concerts too seriously and forget that these are warm summer nights and the music should stimulate us to gayety rather than contemplation of the how and wherefore of musical composition. Might I suggest also a longer intermission that would permit some promenade and happy conversation.



Mr. Lissfelt

Victor Saudek has hit on a rather good proportion in the choice of classic and popular music and his players are acclimated to the al fresco conditions. Last night acoustics were improved and at times exceedingly good.

A fine feature of the program was the singing of our popular tenor, Samuel Di Primio, whose beautiful voice took on still more attractive quality in the open air. His performance of the air from "Martha" was by far the best singing I have heard from this young man. As encores he did "I Love Life" and the "La Donne e Mobile" from "Rigoletto," which he repeated on insistent demand from the large audience.

—J. FRED LISSFELT.

SHIMMERING SATINS, CRINKLY CREPES FOR FORMAL EVENINGS

SOME WOMEN prefer being swathed in satins and silks for town, and keep their crisp little cottons for the country. For those unforgettable "big" nights that occur every summer, one must be prepared with elegant clothes—cottons would be completely de trop. While effervescent organdies, simple dotted Swisses and casual linens are a joy to wear for country club or beach club week-ends, they'd find themselves almost in disgrace at certain ultra-formal occasions.

* * *

THERE'S NO doubt that one feels more "dressed up" in silks. Shimmering fabrics have an evening luster that cottons cannot boast of. A fluff of soft pastel fur framing the face can change the entire mood of an evening. . . a courageous gown can transform a rather normal party into quite an "occasion!" And likewise an ingenue into a world sophisticate!

* * *

YOU SEE by the softly draped white crepe gown on the right just what a fine art simplicity can be. The designer gathered, twisted and turned the fabric, and yet the result manages to be exquisitely simple and chaste. A carbon blue crepe sash twists ingeniously through the gathered neckline in front, swoops to the gathered waist in back and is then allowed to grow fuller and fuller until it ends in a slight train. The effect is Grecian and majestic.

* * *

Readers Favor Chaperones For Young People

Are chaperones necessary?

And are a boy and girl bound to go haywire, unless they have a bodyguard?

Broken Hearted Parent started this argument. Daughter brought the Boy Friend home, Mamma and Dad, thinking this was still 1893 instead of 1933, stuck around all evening keeping a friendly but firm eye on the young folks.

After which Daughter blew up—wanted to know what was the Big Idea, Mamma, righteously indignant, retorted that as long as daughter lived in her house, she intended to do as her mother had done before her—etc., etc., etc., Then, feeling sorry for herself, she sat down and asked for love and kisses from this column.

But we didn't agree. We also remember those Good Old Days of '93—but we weren't so wild about them ourself. So we opined that the Modern Working Girl should know her way around, and if a doting Mamma insisted on Expecting The Worst, it was her own bad luck.

Not that we didn't sympathize with Doting Mothers' foolishness, having been one ourself. But, after all, this is the Twentieth Century. And why shouldn't the youngsters have a little time to themselves, to get acquainted?

But, according to Armida, our ide's all wrong.

"For mother to go out and leave them alone," she insists, "would be neither decent nor right.

"It was the first time this young man had called at the home. It was wrong of this girl to object because her mother stayed with them. She should have her parents present two or three more times when he calls. Then he will appreciate her and respect her.

"I am only 23, but I am married and have two children, so I am not ignorant of life. I am very modern also, but I still have enough sense to know that I am a woman. So I sympathized with this mother and know how she felt about leaving her girl alone with this fellow. It wouldn't have been right at all. She was trying to think about things and save trouble for the years to come."

KNOW BETTER NOW

But what, Armida, has "being a woman" to do with your idea that girls and boys have to be watched to keep them decent? Not that I'm advocating unchaperoned week-ends, or a general taboo on parents; but why should a bodyguard be required for a mere social call?

Once women were supposed to be so weak, and men so villainous, that they couldn't be trusted together for a minute; but in this year of 1933 we know better. Men and women work together, play together, and are n. decent friends.

And as for "respecting" a girl—men respect them or don't respect them according to the way they conduct themselves, and not according to how many watchdogs they have. If that weren't true, both men and women would make a pretty poor showing in this busy world.

And now here's Albert, with yet another bleat. According to him Daughter is just pampered and selfish, and doesn't appreciate a Really Good Mother, who should spend the evening with the young folks so she can get acquainted with the Boy Friend.

"What parent," says he, "wouldn't want to meet and get acquainted with a daughter's choice in friends? And what young man, if he is a man, wouldn't want to know the girl's family?

DEFENDS MOTHER'S VIEW

"I can easily see that this girl is one of those Pampered Children, who has not yet learned the value of a parent! She should have been less selfish, and looked at this from the parents' point of view. She should have found some tactful way of getting out of her embarrassing position, instead of 'picking a bone' with her mother.

"And now your answer has given her a sharp instrument with which to jab her parents' hearts in the future. If you print this letter, I hope this girl sees it, and begs her mother for the much-needed forgiveness. It was the first time this boy ever came to the house, and naturally the mother wanted to see whom she had worked so hard to please."

Of course she wanted to, son. But she had plenty of time to meet him during dinner, and get acquainted with him. It wasn't necessary for her to spend the evening with him to get to know him, or to show her cordiality if she liked him.

And the youngsters need time together, with no listeners-in, to get to know each other.

And let me remind you of this, big boy. It wasn't daughter, it was mamma, who was kicking up the fuss and feeling picked-on!

MERMAIDS—PRISTINE, AND PRESENT

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Once upon a time young ladies went down to the sea in the "swim-suits" that you see on the left. "COULD they swim?" say you, gay, brown young lady who answers to the name of Mermaid this present day! I will have to look that up—but I have never read anybody who has said yea or nay to that yet.

Nobody save a ribald artist thought these little mermaids in their long, turkish-looking trousers, their slimsey-looking head-kerchiefs and their sleeves, high necks and funny little umbrella-like skirts (Was that to make the affair more modest still?) funny. And this famous one did. John Leech in his day made fun of the women and girls—and the men, too, for he was fair, in his world, and yet managed to make the big-eyed, round-cheeked creatures dainty and piquant.

Turning back the pages of the scores of his drawings you know very well that life really looked as he made it, then. His women's crinolines blow in a breeze that you can feel in your platinum blond locks. His mermaids are mighty funny, but wet and lively little women. You can hear the green sea slap on their little white toes.

"A Day at Dieppe!" Could such a sea-going frock have been? Yes, it was. And Ferdinand thought Arabella very fetching, and not a little bold in it.

Look at "A Day at—not Dieppe these days—but Deauville" now. Where, oh where, are the clothes of the Demoiselles? Why these are they! And quite enough, too, for a 1933 mermaid. She wears just enough to satisfy the conventions of the year she lives in (and so, by the way, did Arabella), and the result is a young girl as free as she was when she was a child.

I can remember when girls wore black satin frocks with black tights, and a bare white leg was something daring and thrilling to fare forth to the sea with. I can remember when the first one-piece knitted bathing suit on a girl intrigued my eye in Santa Monica, on the blue Pacific.

Correct Manners

Mourning

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I realize that social customs are always changing; therefore, I am asking a question that has been answered often.

How long should a married son refrain from attending theters and dances after the death of his mother? F.

Going to dances is quite different from going to the theater, when one is in mourning. Usually people in mourning don't go to dances for at least a year after the death of so close a relative as a mother.

But if one goes quietly to the movies, with a friend, or to a theater performance of a simple kind, this can be done within two or three months.

It's difficult, practically impossible, to give definite rules about this sort of thing, for doing them depends so much on the personal reaction . . . which after all, is the thing that really counts in these circumstances . . . and on the way they are done. Some people want to be away from all diversions, while others find comfort in going with a relative or one or two friends to some simple performance that takes their minds off themselves and their sorrow.

Gifts of Silver

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm in doubt as to the use of pewter for silver. It is to be a gift for an aunt of whom I think a great deal.

She is to celebrate her silver wedding anniversary very soon. I've looked in all the local stores and cannot seem to find anything in silver, but there are many things in pewter that I could choose. Would this something in pewter be appropriate?

Thank you for your column. F.

I don't believe, for this important silver wedding anniversary gift, that you should give pewter in lieu of silver. Unless, of course, you are sure that your aunt is especially enthusiastic about pewter. The pewter gift would be charming for some other occasion. I am sure that, if you look more carefully, you will discover some lovely silver detail that will make your aunt very happy, and very proud of you for thinking of it. Iced tea spoons? After-dinner coffee spoons? The duet of serving pieces, serving spoon and serving fork? A set of bridge spoons, with the cards symbols at the ends of the handles? An open or covered vegetable dish? A casserole dish, the glass dish in the silver container? A silver traveling clock? A handsome, plain silver photograph frame? A silver fountain pen? Some silver accessory for her dressing-table or for her desk?

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Shamming "Uncle Charlie" Brought Back to Consciousness

Hugh carried me to the farmhouse, where we met Philip Veritzen, Brixton and Lee Chow. The three injured men were carried to the house also.

I realized that Harry had managed things so that Noel, Mary, Ronald, Marion and Carolyn had all been sent to the hotel after Lillian.

Harry Underwood's reference to the dispensing of high justice to the three gentlemen in the other room followed his brief discussion with Lee Chow, who apparently agreed that it was necessary to find out for certain whether or not Samuel Brixton was involved in the kidnaping. Harry had addressed Nettie, asking her to stay with me. Then he turned to me with a grin.

"We leave you in good hands," he said, as he went with my father and Philip Veritzen into the "other room," where "Henner-y" waited with the men guarding the prisoners.

But Hugh lingered, coming over to the couch and looking down into my eyes, which I realized had betrayed my terror to him.

"What is it?" he whispered. "Tell me what is troubling you."

"I—am frightened," I said. "What are you going to do with those men out there in the kitchen?"

"Nothing that need frighten you," he returned. "We're going to make it certain that those gangsters have no means of tracing us. They know our faces, but not our names, and they have no data concerning us.

"We intend first to put the fear of God into them—Tony already has recovered consciousness—so that if they ever do find out our identity, they'll hesitate to start anything; and secondly, we're going to blindfold them and have them carried far away from here.

MADGE HEARS PLAN

"Wynne will drive them in their own car, and one of the other men will follow in Wynne's car. When they get to a good place on a lonely road about a mile from a gas station, Wynne will let the gas out of their car, tell them if they take their 'blinders' off until they count a thousand or two they'll be shot, and then will beat it in his car. By the time they can get going there will be no trace of Wynne, and they will be lucky if they're not picked up by police. So exit, Nick and Tony. Is that very terrifying?"

"No, rather gratifying, instead," I admitted. "But—you haven't told me what you're going to do with Owen?"

His face shadowed evasively. "Unfortunately, we can't do what we'd like. I think old Harry could tear him in pieces. But we can find out whether or not he's shamming at the present moment, and the process won't be particularly pleasant for feminine eyes."

"But I thought he was dying," I said in astonishment.

"So did we," he returned grimly, "and he was nearly out when we gave him that hypo. But it wasn't because of his injuries simply a bad heart. And since the hypo brought his heart action up, we've been pretty sure he's shamming unconsciousness; so we're going to find out. But he really won't be hurt."

"Do you think I care if you hurt him—the unspeakable beast?" I cried. And Hugh, with a startled glance, said "That's all right, then," and went into the other room.

I could not tell whether there was approval or disapproval of my ferocity in that glance. I do not believe Hugh thinks good women should be revengeful. It was less than a minute after Hugh had closed the door behind him before the curtains of the alcove parted and Lee Chow came slowly across the room.

THUGS TAKEN AWAY

"Might I crave the favor of a cup of tea for Mrs. Graham and myself?" He spoke directly to Nettie, who was rocking vigorously in a big, cane-backed rocking chair. She brought the chair to a halt and looked from him to me.

"I'd just as lief," she said, and started for the door. When she had closed it, Lee Chow turned to me with the glint of a smile in his eyes.

The smile touched his lips for an instant; then he crossed to the door and opened it in the merest crack.

"So long, Wynne!" Harry Underwood's voice came through the aperture. "Remember to watch those babies every second, even if they are blindfolded and hobbled. They're bad medicine!"

"I'll remember," Wynne's voice was grim. "I'll drop 'em at Jerry's if they so much as open their traps."

"What time does your husband expect to return?" he asked, and I wondered whether he was trying to take my attention from possible disquieting sounds in the next room.

"In about three hours," I answered, looking at him intently in the vain hope that I might find some clue to his thoughts in his inscrutable face. "Oh! What was that?"

A sound something between a shriek and a howl had come through the closed door, followed by a loud, savage curse in Charles Owen's voice.

"They've found out he was shamming. It won't be long now. Tell me—"

An inarticulate cry from the alcove checked his speech, and he went to Brixton's side just as Hugh came through the door and hurried over to me.

Household Hints

Cotton wool will go almost twice as far if it is slightly warmed before use.

Steel articles will polish quickly if they are rubbed with vinegar and then polished with a soft duster.

Varnish should be warmed slightly before applying. This diminishes the strong pull which the brush has on the varnish in its cold state.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Fighting One Disease With the Germs of Another

Not long ago I told you about the use of malaria germs in the treatment of certain disorders of the brain. Since then many inquiries have come to me concerning this method of treatment, as well as the treatment of paralytics by the use of an artificially produced fever. I have a letter before me from a sufferer from paralysis who asks for more information about this procedure.

Dr. Copeland

The treatment of paresis, or general paralysis, by artificially produced malarial fever was first described in 1917 by a Viennese physician. Since then much research work has been done abroad and in this country. A recent announcement of the United States public health service is indeed encouraging: "Many paralytic sufferers have been entirely cured by this treatment!" This is especially encouraging since formerly only 1 to 2 per cent of the victims of this disease recovered.

The treatment involves some risk and can only be performed in institutions that specialize in this work. The germs of malaria are inoculated into the patient. This is done by exposing him to the bite of an infected Anopheles mosquito.

This mosquito transmits malaria. Of course the necessary precautions are taken to prevent the spread of the disease to well persons. Special types of mosquitos are bred for this purpose.

As a result of the bite the patient runs a high fever for several days. Like true malaria, the sufferer complains of chills, fever and sweats. Strange as it may seem, the high fever has a beneficial action on the diseased nervous system. It is gratifying to see the marked improvement results from this unusual form of treatment.

Not all forms of paralysis respond to this treatment. It is indicated in selected cases. This can only be determined by the physician experienced in the work.

The treatment is never given to a patient who is in poor physical health. Careful investigation of the condition of the heart, kidneys, liver and other organs must be made before the treatment is administered.

Special studies are now being made in the breeding of the Anopheles mosquito, the one which carries the germs of malaria. Improvement in technique and methods of administration has decreased the danger of this treatment. It is to be hoped that within a short time the treatment will be simplified and within the reach of all sufferers from this affliction.

Do not be misled by reports concerning the so-called malaria treatment. I would advise anyone interested in this unusual form of treatment, to consult with his physician. He will advise and direct you to the institution where the procedure is safely done.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Backward Finesse

One of the first things taught to the student of Bridge is the principle governing the finesse, and teachers emphasize the fact that in hands containing, for instance, K x x in one hand and A J x in the other, the finesse to capture the Queen must be taken by leading a low card up to the A J x combination, unless the Ten is held in the other hand. This principle of play is subject, however, to some modification. This modification is called by expert players "the backward finesse." This play is made by taking a finesse against the Queen, the reverse of the method here outlined—that is, by leading the Knave without holding the Ten, with the hope that the Ten will drop on the first or second round of the suit. Naturally, the success of such a play requires the holding of the 9 in either one or the other hand. This play is rarely made, and generally only in the cases when the Declarer is fairly certain that the finesse would lose if played in the normal manner, and that the only hope of success is to find special distribution of the cards in the opponents' hands that will make she play a trick-winner.

The hand below is an example.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	3 ♣	3 ♠
4 ♣	4 ♠	5 ♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

The bidding might have been better. A contract of five diamonds would be much better than five clubs, as the extra club length would provide discards for losers. The fact that East and West were vulnerable explains their failure to defend with a bid of five spades.

West's Opening lead was the spade King, which Declarer trumped. Next the adverse trumps were drawn, the last being won in Dummy, and another round of spades led, eliminating that suit from the hand of the Declarer and Dummy. The Declarer now considered the situation. As West had bid and re-bid spades, he must hold a minimum of five. Therefore East held a maximum of six.

As West had shown three clubs, East must hold at least seven cards in hearts and diamonds. If five of the red cards were hear's, it seemed quite possible that East might have bid them, but even if he did not bid hearts, it appeared improbable that if he held five hearts and six spades he would not have defended with five spades.

It thus seemed to South reasonable to assume that East held at least three diamonds, and thus it appeared that the odds were better than even that the normal diamond finesse would lose. South therefore decided that he would not finesse the diamond suit to the East hand and led a low diamond to the King in Dummy, both East and West following with small cards. Declarer having reasoned that East probably held the Queen, the Knave was led on the second round of the suit.

East was helpless. If he failed to cover, the Declarer would let the Knave hold. He decided to cover with the Queen, the Declarer won with the Ace, and West's Ten dropped. South now took his remaining tricks in diamonds, winning the last one in his own hand, and subsequently won a heart trick, fulfilling his contract.

The student may think the play here outlined is difficult, but actually it was the most likely to succeed. South knew that the probabilities were that East had more diamonds than West. If this were true, then East was more likely to have the diamond Queen, and thus the backward finesse against the Queen, with the hope of dropping the Ten, was the proper play. Another reason for making the play was that the method outlined in this case would cope with the finding of four diamonds to the Queen-Ten in the hand of East, as, playing in this manner, the Declarer could safeguard himself against the loss of more than one diamond.

Today's Question

The bidding:

North	South
1 NT	2 NT
3 NT	Pass

You, East, hold

♠ K 10 9 5 2 ♡ A 10 4 ◇ Q 10 3 2 ♣ 7

What do you lead?

Answer: Diamond Queen. Even though the diamond suit contains only four cards, while the spade suit contains five, leading from an honor sequence like this is invariably preferable to leading from the tenace holding in spades.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

An American in Hollywood

There's a great opportunity for anybody to get rich in this country . . . Anyone that is, who opens a delicatessen or restaurant and features real ham! . . . Or anything that even resembles . . . You can get avocadoes and the sourest oranges where I am, but you can't get a decent ham sandwich . . . The nearest thing to genuine ham of course, is over at the movie lots, but they are under contract . . . Well, Eleanor Holm, the Olympic swimming champion, learned a lesson . . . Warner's finally settled with her and tore up the contract made when she was cheered so lustily during the Olympics several months ago . . . She was hired as a star—at $300 per week, which she drew regularly—for warming benches and playing bits under different names . . . Eleanor is now New York bound to try and make the front pages, again—at nothing a week.

Talk about things I never knew till Darryl Zanuck, who ought to know, told me . . . The word "love" is avoided in movie titles as much as possible . . . Imagine that . . . The one word in any language that tops everything . . . It appears that in the past few years a movie title containing "love" kept them away from the box-offices in droves . . . Too many of the movie makers abusing the word in a title and not backing it up with any pash on the screen . . . At any rate—the flop play "I Loved You Wednesday" is a much better movie and should run cash registers . . . It was nice meeting all the better cartoonists and animated picture makers that way—over at Paramount's dining room . . . When Chevalier posed for a still with me, and he put on his prop smile, he mumbled: "Can you 'magine me sitting here having to smile at you—after all those things you put in the paper?" . . . When Claudette Colbert did her act of smiling—I mumbled: "Liar!" . . . It broke her up . . . I must have annoyed Claudette more than any other actress . . . Couldn't resist whispering to George McManus, (the creator of "Bringing Up Father") how much Walt Disney (the creator of Mickey Mouse) resembled Mickey . . . "You know, of course," said McManus, "that all cartoonists draw themselves?" . . . I didn't know it . . . McManus is "Jiggs" in his comic strip.

The fascinating stories you encounter in this strange land . . . That one concerning the major studio chief, who has a brother who thinks fast . . . The brother was employed in a high executive capacity in the studio and he dwelled in a penthouse atop a theater owned by the same movie company . . . He was tipped off that he was going to be fired . . . So what did this guy with the noodle doodle? . . . Acting within the rights of his position, he drew up a lease on the penthouse, leasing it to himself a $100 a month for a term of seven years . . . Shortly after came the dismissal notice he anticipated—but now without a job he makes nearly as much per week as he drew when he was working! . . . He sub-leased the penthouse to a Los Angeles business man at $650 per month—a clear profit of $550 a month to him! . . . And the lease cannot be broken!

Henceforth I'm going to omit the duller similes—they must be aces to get recognition here . . . I like Golden Book's idea of encouraging metaphors. Frank Sullivan's giving them a corking start . . . As frixample "Life is a Philadelphia postman—slow, gray, inexorable . . . Life is a bag of mail, and death is a canceled stamp" . . . Yet the similes when they have a wallop excite me, because I am such a dunce at manufacturing good ones . . . Wonder who thought of this one? . . . "As far apart as Tokio and Geneva" . . . It's been a long spell, too, since I've recommended something that was certain to win the column grateful subscribers . . . Now I've come across a grand item . . . The grandest way to fry eggs! . . . Arthur Hornblow of the United Artists studio made it popular in Hollywood . . . He first knifes thick slices of French bread, and then scoops out most of the white part, leaving a little of it on the rim of the crust—which is heavily buttered (the inside of the crust) . . . He then drops the egg into the circles of thick slices of bread—and there you are.

* * *

The stars and other ladies of the studios no longer while away the time waiting for the next scene knitting things . . . Because every time they did—the next day's columns asserted that they were cradle-shopping . . . The Fox studios are getting cute. Instead of "Keep off the grass" signs on their lawns, shrubbery and flower beds, the signs read: "Please let me grow." . . . The going is going to be tougher for the Hollywood and Vine street restaurant situation, which depend on the actor patronage, particularly the stars, which draw the "flies," who like to bask in their limelight! . . . The Brown Derby, Sardi's, Levy's, the Vendome, and Winchell's Beer Garden (which just opened, but is no branch of this pillar!!!) will be joined soon by General Lodijensky, who formerly ran the Russian Eagle here, when he opens a Russian Beer Garden . . . Question—What is a Russian Beer Garden? . . . Even if Aristotle said of smart-alecks (who are careless of people's feelings in their efforts to get laughs) that their wit is "educated insolence."—I want to alter my answer to the query: "How would you like to die? . . . As for me, I'd like to die like George Bernard Shaw—without having to lie down.

Comic Sheik Goes Gay In Penn

By JAMES A. BAUBIE

When there's romancing to be done in the desert, Myrna Loy, with her poignant eyes, is more than a match for the Garbos and the Dietrichs—especially when the romancer is Ramon Novarro, as is the case in "The Barbarian," showing in the Penn.

In spite of the fact that one or two scenes, that make the sands of the desert grow colder in contrast, may give the Watch and Ward a bit of discomfiture, the picture is generally a well-mixed concoction of near-comic antics and exciting maneuvers.

It's a throw-back to the "sheik" motif, and, if you remember, that motif was mighty popular with the ladies.

The palms and pyramids and oceans of sand melt into a perfect backdrop for the tantalizing singing of Novarro, who, besides being Jamil, the "best dragoman in all Egypt," is a prince in disguise. No wonder Diana (that's Myrna Loy) succumbs to him: First he makes her laugh at his antics as a servant who obeys her commands before they are given; then he entrances her by his song, and finally carries her into the desert after bombarding her with orchids sent by another admirer. This is one of the best scenes in the film.

Jamil, in spite of being fired, attaches himself to Diana's caravan which is to take her to Gerald, her fiance, played by Reginald Denny. After she strikes him with a whip for kissing her under a desert moon, the dragoman escapes with her to his own private oasis.

Diana is finally freed from Jamil's tribal home and arrives in Cairo in time for her marriage to Gerald, who neither sings nor recites poetry, which fact rather gains for him the sympathy of the men in the audience.

What happens then is a secret we wouldn't tell for the world, but Diana did tell Jamil that her mother was an Egyptian. And he said he didn't care.

Warner Film Gripping

By WILLIAM T. SCHOYER

Frankie Darro, boy actor, is "The Mayor of Hell" in the picture of that name at the Warner, with James Cagney, cast as the star, appears as "hell's" good angel. Gripping, pathetic, and with a touch of the improbable, the story is of Cagney's efforts to save the souls of a group of boys sentenced to a state reformatory which is run like Devil's Island.

Their juvenile racketeering ventures snared in the bud, a group of boys, who do some capable acting, grow steadily more vicious and criminal under the brutalities of their reformatory jailer. Then Cagney, new deputy commissioner as result of ward politics, shows up to witness Darro's heart-breaking attempt to escape over the barbed wire.

A cocky tough mug himself, Cagney sympathizes with the kids. At least he sympathizes after seeing their lovely nurse, Madge Evans. Getting himself appointed superintendent, he follows Madge's plan of letting the boys govern themselves in a model republic with a court of justice of its own. The reformatory turns into Utopia until, in a political brawl, Cagney shoots a double-crosser.

Back in charge, Dudley Digges lays on the lash of cruelty and revenge. A boy dies. The school rises in muting and to an impressive climax as in their own tribunal they find the jailer guilty of murder. Risking the chance that his enemy has died, Cagney rushes back to the flaming school to save his charges, to win the girl and recognition for his loyalty. It's a well-knit, affecting show.

Morry Rose Orchestra For Kennywood

Cato's Vagabonds conclude a week's engagement at the Kennywood dance pavilion tonight. Monday, Morry Rose will bring his band to Kennywood. Rose played in the original Vitaphone orchestra and was in the first talkie, "The Jazz Singer," as well as "The Singing Fool" and other Jolson pieces. He was musical director of the Mack Sennett Comedies. As a feature entertainer he presents Jackie Bowers, novel entertainer. Rose's orchestra will play for both dances on July Fourth and will play also, Monday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons and nights.

Much Worrying Being Done Over Good Old Dollar

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Well, this London conference is mutual. We're worrying over the money we loaned. Europe is perturbed over the money we have left.

Seems that the American dollar hopped out of the index filing system and refuses to go back.

It is skipping around like an ant on a hot rock. Nobody can peg it. For a century it was a solemn, dependable institution. Now it has become a blithe, carefree sprite that intends to lead its own life.

Nobody can claim that we ain't done a fair and square job of whittling. We're letting it chips fall where they may.

Today we have our choice of agreeing with the opposition or breaking up the conference. The old world and the new have been playing tug-of-war with apron strings. It looks as if they have snapped.

Silvia Sidney To Be Spy

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, July 1.—Every colorful actress, some time in her career, likes to play the role of a spy. Sylvia Sidney gets her chance in "Reunion," which will be the first picture B. P. Schulberg makes after his return from Europe.

In its original form, this was a play by Alfred Davis called "The Last Curtain." It tells the adventures of an English actor and a German actress who are co-starring in London at the outbreak of the World War. Both heroine and hero are spies. They also are in love with each other. The clash of impulse against duty leads to an exciting climax behind the German lines.

Playing with Miss Sidney in the film will be Meredith Marshall, the English actor, who has been on vacation for several months.

It may be late in September before cameras begin grinding on "Reunion." Schulberg will leave here around July 18 and will be gone two months.

Bing Crosby cashed in handsomely when his baby proved to be a boy. He had bets with Dick Arlen, Wesley Ruggles and Stuart Erwin, all fathers of boys . . . Incidentally, Mrs. Crosby (Dixie Lee) was in the hospital only a little more than an hour when the baby, her first, was born.

* * *

Apparently, Ruth Chatterton is going to override studio objections and have George Brent as her leading man again in "Female." Production officials feel that married couples should not play opposite each other.

* * *

As a result of her rest, Constance Bennett has gained eight pounds. She is defying doctors' orders to give up tennis, too . . . They'll tell you that John Barrymore is really proudest of a collapsible convenience he invented for the baby and had installed in the back of his new car. John and the family will not be back here for at least two months.

Pair Cast Together For Third Time

Their roles in "The Secrets of the Blue Room" completed, Gloria Stuart and Paul Lukas have been chosen to play the leads in "Giant Plane." The story, by Laird Doyle, with Edmund North and James Gow, former movie critic of the old New York World, contributing the dialogue. "The Giant Plane" will mark the third appearance of Miss Stuart and Lukas in Universal pictures this season. They played opposite each other in "The Kiss Before the Mirror."

Heavy 'Name' Cast For Wells' Tale

Forrester Harvey has been added to the cast of Universal's "The Invisible Man," thus bringing the H. G. Wells' story of futuristic science closer to its starting date, set for next week. Harvey, who recently played in "Destination Unknown" for Universal, joins a large lineup of players headed by Claude Rains, Dudley Digges, Henry Travers and Una O'Connor. James Whale will direct from the screen-play written by R. C. Sherriff.

Sawdust Queen and Her Palfrey

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"IT is supposed to have happened, Mark," writes Eileen Kelly, "in front of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel the other afternoon. A beautiful car was parked there, and in the car was a beautiful woman whom I needn't describe here. I'll just tell you that she was the last word and let you imagine the rest. (Editor's note: Thank you, Miss Kelly. People are so nice to me these days.)

"Up the street came a drunk. He was fairly well dressed, but he was obviously completely plastered. He stopped beside the beautiful car, looked in at the beautiful girl and whistled softly. Then he stepped back, examined the car and the girl once again—and suddenly raised his hat.

"'Lady,' he hiccoughed, 'I don't know who you are. But you shertainly deserve it!'" . . .

* * *

"DEAR Mr. Hellinger:" writes Thomas Bennett, of Annapolis, Md. "I've sent you several letters on this question, but you've evidently been too busy to answer me. I'll try you just once more. What I want to know, is the correct pronunciation of 'columnist?'"

It depends, my lad, entirely upon the columnist. In dealing with most of us, however, you simply pronounce it n-u-t-s . . .

* * *

"YOUR recent remarks about unemployment," writes Frank Winters, of Chicago, "causes me to wonder if you've printed the best gag of its kind that ever happened? It takes the form of a note that was sent to a sob sister on an afternoon paper out here some years ago.

"'Dear Sally,' the note read, 'I am the mother of six children, and my husband has been out of work four months. We are in dire want and have been living on bread crusts for weeks. I wonder if one of your kind readers could send my husband, who is short and stocky, a tuxedo — preferably with wide lapels?'" . . .

* * *

"ADD this one, Mark, to your favorite stories of ingratitude," writes Hugh Wedlock, Jr. "And believe it or not, it's true.

"A friend of mine owns a large hardware store and, as things began to pick up recently, he decided to hire some additional help. Accordingly, three new employes were added.

"My friend took a liking to one of the newly hired men and handed him a clerical job that promised early hours and a vacation. Deciding to go a little further, my friend decided to give this fellow a vacation this very year. In order to do so, however, he'd have to give him a late one for by that time, the new employe would have had a fair amount of service in his new job and the other men would be less likely to complain.

"Calling him aside one morning last week the boss said:

"'Harry, I've made up my mind to give you a vacation this year. You can have the first two weeks in September—with pay.'

"Instead of the look of appreciation that my friend expected to see, the newcomer gave out an expression of disgust. The boss was amazed.

"'What's the matter?' he asked. 'Aren't you satisfied?'

"'Satisfied,' grunted the new man. 'Why should I be satisfied when I'm being gypped out of Labor Day?'" . . .

Double Bill Is Shown

By MARY SHINE

"Strictly Personal" and "The Big Brain" are the titles of the uninspiring screen features in the Davis and Sheridan Square. Both have to do with rackets, the former a marriage bureau, the second, crooked stocks.

"Strictly Personal" is all about the Lonely Hearts Club, organized by a reformed convict and his wife, Marjorie Rambeau, who are running it on a strictly honest basis. Louis Calhern, in his usual role of deep-dyed villain, discovers the convict's past, and forces him to form a partnership with him in the club, so he can blackmail the members. He murders a widow and casts suspion on his partner. Then he is mysteriously shot while trying to kidnap Dorothy Jordan, a protege of Marjorie Rambeau.

Eddie Quillan, as an enterprising young reporter, finds out more than half the truth, captures the heart of the lovely Dorothy. And "all's well that ends well," with the convict's past once again a closed chapter.

George E. Stone is the man with the Big Brain and small stature in the second feature. From bootblack to barber, to stock swindler and back to prison barber he goes.

After innumerable clever swindles and evasions of the law, he falls so hard for Fay Wray that he bites the dust when he lands. And all because he has involved an innocent young man, Phillips Holmes, in his nefarious schemes, and he is Fay's heart, so she lures the crook into the police net.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., July 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

With all the rest of us using silver, copper, buttons, pins, checkers, wampum and watermelons for money, France can't see any advantage in using real money, so they are liable to dive off the gold standard any day now.

Europe is disgusted with America because she won't say exactly what her dollar is worth. We say our dollar is like a wife, they are worth whatever they are worth to you. They may go to 10 cents abroad, but they are still worth a dollar to us.

Last Views Of Flyer

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Pictures of Jimmy Mattern, perhaps the last, lost around-the-world flyer, taken upon his arrival in Moscow, Russia, are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Ahead of the record at the time, Mattern is given a great ovation by the Soviet airmen. Then he is off for food and sleep, to start again in nine hours to fly across Siberia, and then to Alaska, which he never reached. The Globe-Trotter describes his trip.

Zionists Leaving For Chicago Fair

A delegation of about 300 Pittsburgh Zionists will leave for Chicago tonight on a special train to participate in the Jewish Day celebration Monday at the Century of Progress Exposition.

Rabbi A. M. Ashinsky, Oscar Robbins, Herman Passamaneck, Mrs. Frank Rubenstein and Harry M. Caplan will be among those to attend. The committee in charge consists of Max I. Amdur, William Shiff, A. R. Kletz, Louis Yale Borkon, G. Eisenstadt, Dr. M. B. Lichtenstein and S. Mallins.

Young Cagney Given Two Film Roles

The first is a roll in "Bird of Prey," the aerial drama of the war, starring Richard Dix. After he completes that part he will play a very romantic lover in "Sweet Cheat," with Ginger Rogers, William Gargan, Pert Kelton, Dorothy Wilson and Arline Judge.

Perfect Vamp On Stanley Screen

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

If you want to see a thorough job of vamping done, you will have to see "Baby Face," comedy drama on the screen of the Stanley, with Barbara Stanwyck doing a swell job in the role of siren, who leaves her humble home in Erie, and winds up, as far as the screen story is concerned, as the wife of a laborer in a Pittsburgh steel mill. Between times she has had love-making experiences in New York and Paris that have proven costly, and even fatal, to the men she has used as steps in the ladder to reach the pinnacle of her dreams—wealth.

"Baby Face" is the nickname the other office girls give Miss Stanwyck as they resentfully watch her going higher and higher in employment through knowing just when to give a bewitching smile to the particular bank official who may be her boss at the time she decides to be bewitching. Everybody in trousers whom she thinks she can use for her purpose, from the policeman on guard in front of the institution, successively on up to the president, she captivates. In the process she wrecks a romance, causes a suicide and gets a half a million in cash, bonds and jewels, besides a husband, the president, who happens to be George Raft.

Barbara plays her role to perfection and looks the part even more than that, if possible. Consequently her artfulness and heartlessness win approval only in the artistic sense. So to make sympathy complete, she has to make the grand sacrifice. Goodbye jewels, wealth, the bank must be saved, for she has suddenly come to realize she really loves her husband. The screen leaves them penniless, starting anew.

PIRATE STAFF LOSES STAYING POWER

IF SOMEBODY KINDLY would have the length of baseball games reduced to seven innings, the Pittsburgh club would be a world beater. At present, it looks like Jack Sharkey. For that distance, the Pirates are almost invincible; for the remainder of the route they are becoming pushovers. The faltering of Bill Swift in the eighth inning yesterday, and the failure of Larry French to hold the game safe after relieving him, though the Bucs still had a two-run lead going into the ninth, brought into evidence again a weakness that has become common to the staff.

Larry French

On the Eastern trip that ends this afternoon, the Corsairs up to today had lost eight games against six won. In two of the eight defeats, the Bucs were leading at the end of the eighth inning; in two others they were ahead at the close of the seventh; in another they were in front until the fifth, and in another the score was a tie at the conclusion of the seventh frame. Of the last 12 games lost by the Rovers, eight were dropped because the enemy came from behind in the late innings.

Recent slips have cost valuable ground. Had the Bucs hung onto their lead in that final New York game and in one of the two Philadelphia contests, they would have been only three games from first place today. Instead they were six behind, the second division was only two games away, and a plunge will be inevitable unless the wobbly pitching staff quickly recovers its lost staying qualities.

THE HITTING POWER of a club is established beyond dispute when it has three members among the leading five batters of its league, that is the leading five who have played regularly. That's the rare distinction held by the Senators, with Manager Joe Cronin, Heinie Manush and Fred Schulte up there in the first quintet.

That offensive explains largely why the Cronins are making such a great fight for the American League pennant. The surprise of the trio is Schulte. His highest mark in six years with the Browns was .317, and in three seasons, including that of 1932, he was below .300.

BABE RUTH thinks his brief absence from the Yankee lineup this week did him a world of good and that it will continue to be reflected in his work. He says every ball player should take a couple of days off every two months.

Ruth admits that one of these days he'll have to quit, and that he's not trying to kid anybody about it, least of all himself. He thinks that if he had started taping his ankles half a dozen years ago he could play five seasons more. Maybe this will be his last year, Babe remarks, and maybe not, but he says the chances are more that it will be than that it won't. He'd like to keep playing until he has made 700 home runs, and he's got 31 to go.

THE REDS HAVE two pitchers in Jack Quinn and Eppa Rixey who have to their credit a total of 50 years of hurling service in professional baseball and 40 years in the major leagues. Each has served 20 years in the big show, and Quinn saw 10 additional seasons in the minors. In this connection, Max Kase makes the interesting discovery that an entire club, and a very strong one, could be formed of present major leaguers whose combined service records in the fast set count up to little more than half of the 40-year total represented by Quinn and Rixey. Hal Schumacher and Earl Grace are named as the battery, with Gus Suhr at first base, Tony Cuccinello at second, Joe Stripp at third, Floyd Vaughan at shortstop, Chuck Klein in right field, Wally Berger in center and Joe Medwick in left. All told, they have worked in the majors only 25 years.

Tommy Padden

THE CASE OF Tommy Padden, optioned to Albany by the Pirates to make room for Val Picinich under the 23-player limit when Earl Grace went into drydock, is cited by Max Carey to prove what the Brooklyn manager calls the injustice of a major league rule.

Carey refers to the regulation which says that when a player is placed on the retired list because of an injury, or for any other reason, he must stay on it for at least 60 days. Max thinks a club should have the right to retire an injured player for only the length of time required for his recovery.

THE DODGER PILOT points out that if the Pirates could have taken Grace off the active list for less than 60 days they probably would have done so, thus making room for Picinich without dropping Padden. He declares that the 60-day rule is not a good one, and that it jolted Padden out of a big league job.

Agreeing with Carey that the rule sometimes works an injustice to conscientious clubs, it is necessary, nevertheless, to prevent cheating, and that's why it was adopted. But for this safeguard, the less scrupulous clubs might be tempted to place on the retired list from time to time, falsely labeled as injured or ill, players who were not needed at that particular stage in order to work in new men to bolster some wobbly department.

NOT ALL OF the prominent sports figures at the A. A. U. meet in Chicago last night were in competition. A visiting scribe observed among the officials and spectators some of the stars of the bygone, who had won wide fame in their heyday. One was Judge Wally Steffen. Another was Jimmy Lightbody, the Nurmi of his time among the distance runners. Still another was Ira Davenport, middle distance star of 20 years ago. Included also were Norman Ross, once the greatest of swimmers; Stubby Kruger, of the same game; Pete Des Jardines and Wally Colbath, of diving renown; Nels Norgren, Phil Spink, Fred Droegmueller, Frieda Ross, Joe Schabinger and many more. Norman Ross is in the insurance business in Chicago and giving radio talks on the side. Colbath is doing a diving act at the World Fair, and Des Jardines, Olympic springboard and high-diving champion at Amsterdam in 1928, is running a concession on the Fair Grounds.

MAYBE YOU THINK you're unlucky when you slice a golf drive and it hurts your score and possibly costs you a hole. But Arthur J. Knorr, production manager of the Capitol Theater in New York didn't get off that cheaply. It set him back just $750.

Knorr sliced a drive at the first hole of the Hillcrest course in Jamaica. The ball crashed through the windshield of an automobile and the flying glass lacerated the eyelids of Miss Anne B. Gleason, sister of Helen Gleason, Metropolitan Opera soprano. She sued for $1,000 damages, and the judge awarded her three-fourths of the sum.

THOUGH CALIFORNIA'S TRACK and field athletes had to bow to Louisiana State in the National Collegiates after scoring their usual victory in the I. C. 4-A games, it looks as though the Golden Staters won the N. C. A. A. meet after all.

That is, won it from Chicago for 1934. The committee will not hold its meeting for several weeks, but Maj. John Griffith has practically admitted the reaching of an agreement whereby the National Collegiate carnival for next year will be awarded to Los Angeles.

Samuel D. Riddle

THE LEADERSHIP FOR the 3-year-old turf title of 1933 has shifted repeatedly with the passing weeks. Hardly was one horse installed as a favorite until another bobbed up to oust him from the post of honor. First it was Broker's Tip, then it was Head Play, next it was Mr. Khayyam, and now it is War Glory. The victory of the last named in the Dwyer Stakes has been belittled in some quarters as due to inferior opposition, but most turfmen were impressed by the colt's performance in doing a mile and a half in 2:31 4-5 to win by six lengths. War Glory, owned by Samuel D. Riddle, is a son of the great Man o' War, resembling his famous sire in many respects. And as the progeny of Man o' War usually improves with age, it is predicted that War Glory will go on to greater things. He has speed and endurance and in all probability courage and class. The 3-year-old title would appear to hinge on the coming meetings of War Glory and Mr. Khayyam.

CUNNINGHAM STAR OF A.A.U. TITLE MEET

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP.)—Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas flyer, has more than earned himself a place among America's track greats, as Chicago's track and field carnival went into its final phase today.

On top of a great indoor season, in which he conquered the country's best at the half mile and mile, followed by triumphs in his own league, the big six, and extraordinary accomplishments in the National Collegiate meet two weeks ago, Cunningham today held two well earned A. A. U. senior titles, gained on Soldier Field.

Making a show of his field in the 1,500 meters run, the Kansas youth raced the distance in 3 minutes 52.3 seconds for a new American and meet record last night. Coming back two hours later, he wiped out a defeat administered by Charles Hornbostel, of Indiana University, in winning the 800 meters in 1:51.8.

Sharing honors with Cunningham was Ralph Metclafe, of Marquette University, who proved his right to the "fastest human" title, by winning the 100 and 200 meters races with the utmost ease.

In addition to the record performances by Cunningham and Metcalfe, Heye Lambertus, of Nebraska, and Cornelius Johnson, Los Angeles Negro high school youth, set new meet marks. Lambertus bettered Bob Maxwell's mark in the 200-meter hurdles winning the event in 23.4 seconds. Johnson bettered his own meet mark of 6 feet, 6⅝ inches, by jumping 6 feet, 7 inches in the high jump.

Everett Utterback, former University of Pittsburgh star and indoor collegiate broad jump record holder and champion, was the only member of the Pittsburgh contingent to place in last night's events. He took a fourth in the hop, step and jump and third in the broad jump.

Pete Zeremba, of the New York A. C., a resident of Aliquippa, Pa., and a N. Y. U. football star, finished fourth in the hammer throw.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE FIRST OCEAN STEAMER—The "Savannah," of 350 tons burden, was the first steamship to cross the Atlantic Ocean. She sailed from Savannah, Ga., on May 22, 1819, and crossed to Liverpool in 29 days and 11 hours. Her one-cylinder engine, built by Stephen Vail, of the Speedwell Iron Works, of New Jersey, carried only 72 horsepower, which is less than the engine of an ordinary motor car today. The engine was thought of unusual size at the time. While the "Savannah" was steaming into Liverpool, English scientists were busy asserting that steam navigation of the oceans was a chimerical thought impossible of fulfilment. THE FLY OF GOLDEN EYES—The Lacewing flies, genus Chrysopa, also are known as the golden-eyed flies. They feed upon the green fly and cover themselves with the emptied skin of their prey.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—Once more the Pirate craft has run aground in Philly. Last year the Buccaneers came swaggering into the City of Brotherly Love after they had wrecked the Giants in a series of doubleheaders at the Polo Grounds. Before they got out of this town they were a changed ball club and they continued to stagger for the remainder of the season.

The local port is generally a stormy one for National League flag contenders. As a rule the Quakers act like a lot of sandlotters when they invade the West, but on their own bandbox park they are very hard to handle. For further information consult George Gibson or any of his sometime bold Buccos who took another on the chin here yesterday. The Pirates were flattened in the ninth inning when the Quakers scored three runs to win, 5-4.

TWO GAMES TODAY

The Bucs and Phils are slated to tangle in a doubleheader this afternoon. The dual fight will end the series, the Pirates to head for the home port tonight. Their Eastern trip originally called for a single contest here on Monday, but this game was moved back to August 28 to provide a doubleheader. Leon Chagnon and Hal Smith probably will twirl for the Bucs. Phil Collins and Snipe Hansen are likely to be on the mound for the home team.

The Buccos, therefore, will have two open dates in succession tomorrow and Monday, but on Tuesday they have a big date with the St. Louis Cardinals in morning and afternoon games, these fights to furnish the Independence Day excitement at Forbes Field.

Bill Swift really ran into misfortune in his joust with the Quakers yesterday. Swift pitched four hitless and runless rounds at the outset and carried a three-run lead into the eighth. The first two batters to face Bill in the eighth singled and Larry French rushed to the scene. French allowed only one run in the round, but he cracked in the ninth.

LUCKY HIT STARTS IT

Schulmerich opened the ninth with a lucky single, but he was forced by Warner. Todd and Knothe followed with singles to get the winning run on the bases. Manager Shotton called upon Big Jim Elliott to bat for Pitcher Pickrel and the ponderous southpaw obliged with a single that scored the second run of the inning. Knothe headed for third on the hit and when Lindstrom threw wide to the sack, over he went with the winning run.

Homers by Val Picinich and Gus Suhr made the Pirates look fine in the early frame. An error by Warner in the first helped the Pirates to two runs. Austin Moore, the starting pitcher for the home team, was nicked for four hits in the inning.

The Phils scored their first run in the fifth on two hits and an infield out.

VINES GAINS WIMBLEDON QUARTER-FINALS

AMERICAN NET STAR VICTOR OVER PRENN

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 1.—(INS.)—Nearing the top of his form, Ellsworth Vines, Jr., American and British tennis champion, advanced to the quarter-final round in the annual Wimbledon tournament today by defeating Daniel Prenn, of Germany, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

With the exception of a bad patch early in the third set, the American star played confidently against the stocky German, playing from the net more often than usual, and scoring many beautiful side-line winners.

Fraulein Hilda Krahwinkel scored for Germany where Prenn had failed, downing Mrs. M. R. King, of Britain, 6-2, 7-5.

Jack Crawford, Australian Davis Cup star, also gained the quarter-finals, defeating A. C. Stedman, of New Zealand, 6-1, 6-4, 6-2.

The French woman star, Mme Rene Mathieu, had little trouble disposing of Miss Katherine Stammers, former English girl champion, 6-4, 6-0.

The King and Queen witnessed the matches today, and the crush of the capacity crowd was so great that several women fainted and were attended by ambulance men and nurses.

WOMEN TRACK STARS CLASH

By JESS CARVER

Women track and field stars of the district, a formidable array of 'em, clash today in the annual Allegheny Mountain Association championship meet at West View Park. The meet is scheduled to get under way at 2 o'clock.

The battle for the team trophy will be waged among stars representing Slippery Rock State Teachers' College, Allentown Turners, Harmony Maennorchor, of Ambridge; the Union A. C., of Turtle Creek; the Burgettstown A. C.; the Monongahela Turners; Slovan A. C., of Slovan, Pa., and the Homestead Turners.

Two record holders will be on hand. Minnie Groeller, of Ambridge, who set a new standard in the shot put last year of 31 feet, two and one-half inches, is on hand and is being counted upon to crack her own mark. Jane Laird, of Slippery Rock, all-round star, who holds the present record for the baseball throw of 242 feet, three inches, set in 1933, also is entered. Miss Laird, beside hurling the baseball, will compete in the javelin throw, 100-meters dash, broad jump and 50-meters sprint.

With the metric system being used all track marks will go down on the books as new records.

College Golfers Battle for Title

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., July 1.—(AP.)—A practically unknown University of Oklahoma sophomore who came out of the West to dominate the preliminary rounds of the National Inter-collegiate golf tournament, played one of the nation's better known younger golfers for the collegiate golf championship today.

The Western invader, Walter Emery, 18, matched strokes in today's 36-hole final round with Rodney Bliss, of Cornell, holder of the Nebraska state title and known as one of the best young match players of the country.

Jones Scores K. O. To Retain Title

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—(AP.)—Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., Negro, today still held the middleweight title belt he was awarded by the National Boxing Association, by virtue of a knockout over Babe Marino, San Francisco, in the last round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

DETROIT, July 1. — Well, folks, our Washington club is winding up one of the swellest Western trips we've had for years. It is just like starting out on the road with a sample case of safety pins and side combs and coming back to the home office with orders for six locomotives, two lighthouses and a dirigible.

Nick Altrock

Our Washington outfit couldn't have shown more stuff if we'd had Roosevelt, Farley, Wallace and the brain trust in the lineup. We waltzed through the Browns, fox-trotted through the White Sox, war-danced over the Indians and buck-and-winged the Tigers. Life in the middle West was just one sweet song.

If we can do as well at home as we did in the corn belt, we'll have the pennant all wrapped up for August delivery and we can have our winter sports in September, just coasting.

J. O'LOUGHLIN MEETS DEFEAT

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Hostilities in the revival of the Allegheny County tennis championships continue on the Westinghouse lot, Greensburg Pike, Wilkinsburg, this afternoon, but they go on minus Defending Champion Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. ace, first ranking district star and victor in the recent Western Pennsylvania men's singles [illegible] event.

[illegible]hlin dropped an astounding 10-8, 6-4 decision to Ted Ro[illegible]nal, unheralded Bureau of Mines performer, in the feature of a rain-abbreviated card yesterday and thereby gave the railbirds something to talk about, precisely as Rosenthal gave officials plenty to think about.

As an exhibition of the racquet pastime, the contest was interesting mainly as a study in contrasts. O'Loughlin's brilliance against his brother Dave in the final fray for the McCahill Cup last Sunday and his utter blow-up in the second and third sets at Westinghouse.

Rosenthal, inexperienced in competition, left the court repeatedly in the course of the engagement to enter the clubhouse for rest and water. His absences became so annoying to his opponent that the latter at length appealed to the committee. For the sake of harmony and no doubt in the belief that O'Loughlin was invincible regardless of all the disturbance, the arbiters took no definite action, with result that the harassed premier lost poise, touch and decisiveness and his game went sky-high.

In another, though vastly milder, reversal of the dope, Eddie Alcorn, 1932 Pitt captain, outsteadied and eliminated Tack Hammer, Greensburg veteran and eighth seeded contender, 6-4, 6-3. Bill Haseltine, Philadelphia crack and twice captor of West Penn man-to-man honors, had a difficult time finishing off Jim Slocum, 6-1, 7-5.

First and second round feminine singles scrimmages were slated for this morning with men's singles and doubles booked for shortly after the noon hour. The mixed doubles draw was to be made this morning and early bouts in this division may be run off late in the afternoon.

MEN'S SINGLES

First Round.

Dr. John L. O'Loughlin won from D. P. Hixson by default.

Second Round.

William P. Haseltine defeated James L. Slocum, 6-1, 7-5. Dr. David L. O'Loughlin won from Thomas Spooner by default. Edgar Alcorn defeated Edgar T. Hammer, 6-4, 6-3. Ralph Baid defeated Neal O. Ryerson, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. Ted Rosenthal defeated Dr. John L. O'Loughlin, 1-6, 10-8, 6-4.

Third Round.

Dr. David L. O'Loughlin defeated L. M. Gordon, 6-0, 6-0.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

First Round.

W. O'LOUGHLIN WINS

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 1.—(AP.)—Billy O'Loughlin, Pitt net ace, swept to victory in singles and doubles competition as the southern Pennsylvania tennis championships completed the second day of competition yesterday.

O'Loughlin trounced Charles Kunkle of Johnstown 6-2, 7-5, to gain the semi-final round of singles and then, teamed with Paul Sullivan of Pittsburgh, to down William Thompson, Washington and Jefferson star, and A. G. Montgomery, of Johnstown, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, in the first round of doubles.

OAKMONT WINS TEAM TITLE

By TOM BIRKS

The Oakmont Country Club's stellar women's golf team again rules the Western Pennsylvania Women's Team League roost.

After an off-season last year, when Allegheny crashed the title picture, the Oakmonters came back in splendid form during the campaign which was terminated yesterday, piling up 45 points in seven matches to lead the second place Field Club squad by three. The Oakmonters lost their only match of the season yesterday, dropping the finale to Allegheny, 4 to 3.

St. Clair, of Section II, won the right to meet Stanton Heights, of Section I, in the playoff match for the Section I berth for next season, nosing out Longue Vue by a single point to take the sectional crown.

In yesterday's matches, in Section 7, Allegheny beat Oakmont, 4 to 13; Field Club downed Westmorelano, 4 to 0; Butler walloped Edgewood, 6 to 2, and Stanton Heights trimmed Fox Chapel, 5 to 3.

In Section II, Pittsburgh Country Club downed South Hills, 4 to 2; St. Clair defeated Youghiogheny, 5 to 4, and Longue Vue walloped Shannopin, 7 to 1. The final standings:

SECTION I.

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pts.
Oakmont	6	1	0	45
Field Club	4	2	1	42
Allegheny	7	0	0	38
Butler	8	4	0	27
Edgewood	2	4	1	24
Fox Chapel	2	5	0	22
Westmoreland	1	5	1	18
Stanton	1	5	1	16

SECTION II.

	Won.	Lost.	Tied.	Pts.
St. Clair	5	1	0	36
Longue Vue	5	1	0	35
Shannopin	4	2	0	30
Youghiogheny	3	3	0	28
South Hills	2	4	0	18
Highland	1	5	0	11
Country Club	1	5	0	10

Shooting a fine 33-32-65, Tony Factor, young pro at the Brackenridge Country Club, set a new record for the course yesterday. The old mark, 66, was held by Dave McKay, Field Club pro.

WCAE to Transmit All-Stars' Game

The National League vs. American League all-star baseball game to be played at the White Sox park, Chicago, next Thursday, will be broadcast, play by play, by WCAE, it was announced today.

CARDS DEFEAT GIANTS AGAIN, YANKS DROP

Associated Press.

The Indian sign, which the St. Louis Cardinals hold over the New York Giants this season, is standing them in good stead in their efforts to regain the National League lead.

The Cards haven't lost a game to the Giants this year, winning their seventh straight by a 1-0 count yesterday, when Joe Medwick broke up a mound duel between Dizzy Dean and Hal Schumacher by pasting a home run after two were out in the ninth. Thanks to Medwick's blow, the Cards now trail the pace setting Giants by only 2½ games.

NATS TAKE LEAD

Meanwhile, the Washington Senators again pulled away in the American League race, breaking their tie with the New York Yankees by defeating Detroit's Tigers by a 2-1 count while the Yanks "blew" a 13-12 decision to the Cleveland Indians.

The Phillies and the Boston Braves continued their sensational winning streaks in the National League. The Phils banged Larry French for four hits to score three runs in the ninth and a 5-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Braves slapped Red Lucas and Allyn Stout for 13 hits to beat the Cincinnati Reds, 9-2, for their fifth straight victory as Wally Berger contributed his fourteenth homer.

The Brooklyn Dodgers cut loose behind Van Mungo's seven-hit flinging and pounded out a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

RED SOX WIN

The Boston Red Sox sent Chicago down into a fourth place tie with Cleveland in the American League by defeating the Pale Hose, 4-2.

The Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns slugged it out for four hours and 36 minutes in a double-header that produced 63 hits, including Jimmy Foxx's twentieth home run. They wound up all square, as the Browns won the opener, 12-11, and Philadelphia the nightcap, 11-7.

College Net Aces Clash in Finals

HAVERFORD, Pa., July 1.—(AP.)—East meets West today for collegedom's highest tennis honor, the national intercollegiate championship.

At 1:30 p. m., eastern standard time, Dick Murphy, of Hamilton College, and top-ranked Jack Tidball, ace of the University of California at Los Angeles, take the center court at Merion Cricket Club to decide the tourney, the title to go to the winner of three of five sets.

At least one of the two battles is sure to go beyond the Mississippi, for both pairs in the doubles have come out of the West to reach the finals. The top-ranking duo, Kamrath and Sterling Williams, the Texans, meet Joe Coughlin and Sam Lee, Stanford team, for the crown.

Primo To Appear Before Court Monday

NEW YORK, July 1.—(Universal.)—Primo Carnera, new world heavyweight champion, has been ordered to show in Supreme Court Monday just why he ought not to pay to Theodore Skratt $14,616.

Skratt is assignee of a judgment for that amount obtained against the Italian behemoth in a breach of promise suit in the English courts by Emelia Tersini, London waitress.

Between Rounds

Phil Goldstein has resigned as boxing coach at the Y. M. H. A., due to pressure of business.

Jock McDonald, of New Kensington, is looking for bouts for Johnny Dunn, 130-pounder, and George Bordell, lightweight. He also has four amateurs ready to turn professional. They are Nick Rossi, 135; Johnny Anderson and Little Harold, 120, and Tommy Carrion, 126.

A card of eight amateur bouts will be offered by the Americaln Legion posts of Brownsville and South Brownsville at Thornton Field, on the National highway on Tuesday, July 4.

UNGER IN BUTLER RACE

BUTLER, Pa., July 1.—Harry Unger, noted dirt-track driver, of Pittsburgh, will be among the drivers who will compete in the program of automobile races to be staged here next Tuesday.

OUIMET'S GOLF

By FRANCIS OUIMET

Former National Amateur and Open Champion.

Of course, every stroke in the game of golf is important, but some strokes make it possible to play others well. For example, the player stands on a tee and knocks a long ball straight down the middle of the fairway, and perhaps within an easy pitch to the green. His first reaction is one of elation over the solidly-hit tee shot. His next one is making up his mind to play the pitch shot as perfectly as possible. In other words, one shot has a direct bearing upon the one to follow.

However, there is no stroke in the game that can lift a golfer from the depths to the sunlight more quickly than a good putt. I suppose every golfer gets a tremendous kick out of a fine long tee shot. There is something of a thrill in connecting with the ball squarely and seeing it sail in the right direction, but if one is continually missing short putts, he is likely to become discouraged and, for that reason, miss not only tee shots, but iron shots as well.

Francis Ouimet

PUTTING HELPS GOODMAN

In reading the full account of Johnny Goodman's success in the Open, I could not help but feel that his putting had a considerable bearing on the rest of his game. I know, when he beat me at Baltimore in the semi-final round of the amateur championship last year, one good putt seemed to start him on the road to victory, and, at Chicago, he no doubt had the feeling that when he had a holeable putt or any putt of reasonable length, he would drop it. This, of course, buoyed up his whole mental attitude to the point where he could relax on his tee shots and his second shots to the green. It is a wonderful feeling of security when you can stand on a tee and feel, regardless of what may take place, that you are going to overcome an erratic shot by a very splendid chip or a good putt. When this happens several times, as a general rule a player finds his game returning to the point where his errors are few and far between.

I am sure much of Bobby Jones' success was due to the fact that he could putt, and putt wonderfully well. I have seen him start off raggedly, on very few occasions to be sure, but when a good putt would save him, he always found it forthcoming, and directly after, his game seemed to rise to its best form. The same is true of Hagen and others—if they putt well, you can rest assured that they will play the balance of their game satisfactorily.

Only the other day I played in a game with a friend, and we were having a close tussle. On one hole, he skied a tee shot which left him a long way from the green. He then hooked a brassie shot into a trap. In the meantime, my drive was down the fairway and my second shot on the back edge of the green. He blasted his ball out of the trap 20 feet from the cup. I then played my approach putt and slipped six feet beyond. My opponent stepped up, holed his 20-footer and I missed my short one and lost a hole that I had played perfectly insofar as getting to the green in the correct number of shots were concerned. As he was leaving the green, my opponent rubbed it in considerably by saying:

"Well, these sour shots of mine will not show on the score card."

I had a similar experience in the British Amateur championship in 1926 at Muirfield. Jesse Sweetser and I came together in the third round. We were having a battle and the golf was good. At the end of nine holes, I had worked into a two-hole lead and drove a fine tee shot off the tenth tee. Jesse pushed his far to the right and had a bad lie in the rough. Between his ball and the hole was a long cross-bunker, and from a bad lie he was taking a great risk in fetching the trap because it must have been 180 yards from his ball. However, he was obliged to take the risk because to play short of the trap meant that he must play a long iron to the gren, his third shot. He took the chance and his ball ran through the trap and stopped on the back of the bunker nearest to the hole. In the meantime, I followed up my nice drive with an equally satisfactory No. 2 iron to the green, his third shot, from the hole. Sweetser made a distance of 100 yards, playing a nice pitch to the green and his ball stopped 18 feet from the cup. I putted my long putt and, as it neared the hole, it gathered momentum over the skiddy putting surface and rolled 10 feet by.

UNEXPECTED HAPPENS

Jesse had a very difficult curving side-hill putt, and I did not believe he could lay it dead, let alone drop it. However, the unexpected usually happens in golf and he holed the putt. I missed mine and, instead of being 3 up, as seemed likely, I was 1 up. From that point on, Jesse's game, which had been ragged in spots, seemed to rise to its best peak. He played the last nine holes in better than par and won the match.

HOLT GETS K. O. OVER BELMONT

By JAMES MILLER

The mere handful of the faithful who found choice seats awaiting them at the North Braddock Bowl last night was treated to a bumper crop of knockdowns and knockouts.

In the main event of the scheduled four 10-round encounters, Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, weighing 148½, was on the receiving end of a bad break when declared the loser by a technical knockout to Billy Holt, Homewood Negro, in the fifth round. Belmont, after losing the first round, in which Holt had him on the floor for a nine count from a right to the chin, came back strong to win the next three heats handily. He suffered a cut eye in the second round and his handlers stopped the bleeding during the rest period, but Holt butted the optic in the fifth round, and, as the gore streamed down his face, Referee Joe Zivic stepped in and put a halt to the affair. Holt weighed 146½.

CLEMENTS VICTOR

Lloyd Clements, of Jeannette, dropped Frank Novak, of the North Side, who outweighed him by 20 pounds, four times in the sixth round of their semi-final setto, and Referee Joe Orsini picked Novak up off the floor, took him to his corner to terminate the bout. Novak also received a bad cut over his left eye. Frank was down for three nine counts and a toll of one had been reached when the fracas was halted. Clements weighed 175 pounds.

The surprise of the night came in the first bout, when Nat Litfin, Jewish lad, of the Hill, floored Jimmy Thomas, Negro belter, for an eight count in the fifth round and had him in bad shape on several other occasions. Litfin won the unanimous decision.

M'VEY WINS AGAIN

Sunny Jim McVey, Rankin Negro, termed The Destroyer by his manager, Bunny Buntach, stretched his knockout string to seven straight by knocking out Joe Doktor, of Buffalo, just 39 seconds after the bell in the first round. A left hook flush on the chin finished Doktor.

An effort was made to postpone the show when it was obvious that the crowd was going to be small, but the boxing commission would not permit the cancellation. No show was announced for next week.

CARNERA vs. SHARKEY

Head Cuffing Beat Sharkey, Art Rooney, Part Manager of Carnera, Declares

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Strolling along Broadway in the wee small hours of Friday morning, when the newsies were hawking special editions of the New York papers telling of Primo Carnera's knockout victory over Jack Sharkey which made him the heavyweight champion of the world, this scribe ran head-on into Art Rooney, Pittsburgh sports promoter.

Rooney had won considerable money on the outcome. In fact, he is cut in on the new champion, having bought a "piece" of him through his friend, Bill Duffy, who manages the huge Italian. Rooney asked:

"What did you think of the fight?"

NEW CHAMP'S RATING

Our reply was that we hadn't made up our mind whether Carnera had hit Sharkey sufficiently hard with that final blow to put him out for the count or if the Bostonian had taken the easy way out when the going was beginning to get tough after he had won the first five rounds handily.

Rooney said he was certain the punch had done the trick, regardless of how Sharkey may have felt at that stage of the proceedings. But he agreed that Carnera had looked pretty bad up to the final round and that, although he was part owner of the big fellow, he thought the latter was far removed from being a great fighter and he thought Max Baer would beat him when they meet, as they will, no later than next year.

REVEALS BATTLE PLAN

That was candor, if nothing else, coming right from headquarters. Rooney went on:

"But I'll tell you how Carnera came to beat Sharkey. It was his training that did it. All through his workouts, Bill Duffy had Primo's sparring partners wear heavy headguards and attack him in a weaving, bobbing manner, for it was in this way that he figured Sharkey would fight. All Carnera was drilled to do was to cuff them around the head with his big fists and arms in any way he could land. They did not have to be clean punches, just so they jammed the sparring partners around the head.

"In the fight Carnera did just that to Sharkey in the early rounds, when Sharkey was outscoring him. Duffy had the fight figured out just right. He had it doped that Sharkey would wrap up his fight in the first five rounds and shoot the works and that if he didn't win then he would become discouraged and Primo could go to work on him. You saw what happened in the sixth. Sharkey was tired from leading and dizzy from that cuffing around the head and he was easy pickings. He was all set for the finish when Carnera brought up that uppercut that put him away."

FORM TAKES LICKING

It sounds very logical, the way Rooney puts it. And he was betting his money on the plan of battle that Carnera fought.

Off the results of the Max Schmeling-Max Baer and Sharkey-Carnera fights, in both of which form ran for Sweeney, it would seem that the time has come to utterly discard this medium as a basis for doping heavyweight fights. In both instances, the man with the better boxing skill wound up on the short end. In the case of Baer and Schmeling, Maxie didn't fight his fight and Baer had too much punching power. In the case of Sharkey and Carnera, Sharkey tossed away a big lead by recklessly throwing right hands that left him wide open for a killing. So what's next when Baer and Carnera meet?

MAX VS. PRIMO

Obviously there will not be much form to worry about in such a pairing. Neither goes in heavily for boxing science. Both are easy to hit, and Baer is the heavier puncher. It should be a fight to delight the fans who still rave about the Demseys and Firpos, a knockdown and drag 'em out battle until one of them drops. Anybody crazy enough to try to pick the winner of that one, in view of what has happened twice in the past month, should have himself examined, and this includes your correspondent, who was on both Schmeling and Sharkey. In both of these battles the ultimate loser was ahead until he was clipped, Schmeling by a slight margin and Sharkey by a great one. In the end form and past performances didn't mean a thing.

STOCKS LEAP ON RENEWED BUYING BOOM

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP.)—The stock market rushed forward vigorously in the first half hour today, sending numerous issues into new high ground. The advance led heavy buying appeared in rails, while industrials and various specialties were well featured, but utilities were quiet.

Allied Chemical opened up nearly 8 points on an initial transaction of 5,000 shares, then added several points. Union Pacific, Case and Celanese advanced around 3 each. Other issues up 1 to more than 2 included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Santa Fe, Baldwin, du Pont, McKesson & Robbons, Canada Dry, American Tobacco B, United Aircraft, Dome, Hazel Atlas Glass, Lackawanna and U. S. Smelting.

Reports that the Federal Reserve Bank had committed itself to a campaign of "steadying" the dollar were read with keen interest by the financial community. That such a policy would have no bearing on eventual stabilization plans is evident, especially in view of President Roosevelt's insistence that he could not obligate the United States to any form of stabilization at the present time.

Domestic industrial news continued favorable. Automobile production for the past week, as estimated by Cram, totaled 59,638 units, an increase of 949 over the preceding week, and the highest weekly figure recorded since the week of June 6, 1931.

Car loadings for the week of June 24 rose 2.8 per cent over the preceding week and 21.2 per cent over the corresponding week a year ago. Increases were reported for all classes of commodities.

Foreign exchanges rose sharply against the dollar in early dealings. Sterling opened at $4.31½, an overnight advance of 4 cents, while French francs stood at 5.01 cents, a gain of 6 points.

WHEAT SOARS 3½ CENTS

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP.)—Buying far predominated in grain markets early today, and wheat prices jumped rapidly. Omaha dispatches said reports of crop damage from excessive heat were coming in thick and fast. Opening 17⅞@3½ cents higher, wheat later held near the initial range. Corn started ¾@2⅛ up, and subsequently altered little.

P.R.R. REPAYING R.F.C. LOAN

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(INS.)—Repayment of a loan of $9,500,000 by the Pennsylvania Railroad was announced by the R. F. C. The railroad paid $5,000,000 at the New York Federal Reserve Bank today and will pay the remainder Wednesday. This is a part of $27,500,000 loan granted for electrification of its line between Washington and New York.

The Pennsylvania withdrew its application for the undisbursed $600,000 of a $2,000,000 work loan received some time ago.

Action of the Pennsylvania may be indicative of an early return of the railroad to private financing, one objective essential for the recovery of the transportation system, according to the board.

Court Curbs A. T. T. 'Talkie Monopoly'

WILMINGTON, July 1.—Judge Nields in United States District Court has granted petitions for temporary injunctions against subsidiaries of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Western Electric Company and Electrical Research Products, Inc., sought by the Stanley Company of America, Inc., General Talking Pictures, Inc., and Duovac Radio Corporation. The injunctions restrain defendants from enforcing contracts compelling exhibitors to obtain exclusively from them all repair and replacement parts for the talking picture equipment.

Taplin Largest Holder of P. W. V.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(AP.)—Frank E. Taplin, of Cleveland, continued to head the list of 20 largest holders of Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway at the end of 1932, it was disclosed today.

His holdings of 225,526 shares were virtually unchanged from 1921, although 223,230 shares or 74 per cent of the total are said to be vested in the Pennroad Corporation.

William H. Woodin, Secretary of the Treasury, was listed in 1932 as a holder of 1,000 shares.

Street Hears Further Advance in Oil Is Coming.

An executive of one of the leading oil companies states that an advance in crude oil prices in the southwest to establish a price of about 75 cents a barrel on the top gravity will be made by next Saturday. Present prices range from 28 cents to 52 cents a barrel. Producers are refusing to part with crude at present posted levels, and purchasers have been compelled to offer premiums running up to 25 cents a barrel.

Happy news for stockholders, as compared with the dour picture of a year ago, is contained in the American dividend record of the past month. Favorable dividend changes almost doubled in June over the same month of 1932. As compiled by the statistical experts, the score stood 82 to 48, whereas in May this year, the favorable items amounted only to 4. Viewed from the reverse side, the picture also has a relatively pleasing aspect for the American stockholders, for the graph depicting bad dividend news shows a sharp decline in June, as contrasted with the same month last year.

Gold shares which had been relegated to the rear during the past two weeks, have come into renewed prominence. Homestake mining, most prominent of the group, in which no trading was done Thursday, bolted ahead for a gain of some 19 points. Dome Mines, Noranda and Alaska Juneau, along with McIntyre Porcupine also were in brisk demend at intervals. Strength here appeared to be largely by way of belated recognition of the recent sharp slump in the indicated gold value of the dollar.

Trading volume on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the month ended yesterday set a new four-year high record. The June turnover reached 593,851 shares, the largest since January, 1929, when 616,561 shares passed through the market during the hey-day of the boom. In May this year the turnover was 377,712, while the gloomy situation existing at this time a year ago is reflected in the May, 1932, total of only 69,975 shares. Prices last month went definitely higher on the wave of buying, which apparently has not as yet reached its crest.

With freight traffic showing one of the healthiest rising trends of any Western road and passenger business also better, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad is expected to show for the six months to June 30, 1933, better than $2,500,000 earned towards its semi-annual fixed charges of $6,900,000, exclusive of the adjustment bonds. This showing means 35 per cent coverage of these fixed charges and contrasts with a deficit of $2,700,000 before charges in the like 1932 period.

The French government will shortly issue a second slice of ten-year bonds to cover the continuing deficit, it was learned today. Better terms will be offered to buyers because of the unfavorable market which on April 29 caused the government to borrow 20,000,000 pounds (currently $128,400,000) from England instead of borrowing at home. The government postponed presentation of the promised first tidal overhauling program to balance the budget. This will be presented when Parliament reassembles in October, Premier Daladier, expressing hope for results from the World Economic Conference, said it was essential to await the outcome of the parley.

FURTHER GAINS BY TRADE MADE IN JUNE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 1.—June was another month of uninterrupted economic recovery.

The chief obstacle to continued advance in the United States was the proposal of stale ideas and policies at the world economic conference at London.

Mr. Rukeyser

The first issue was over the proposal to stabilize currencies temporarily, including the dollar. The effect of such an agreement would have been to tie the hands of our government and to retard efforts to offset the earlier depreciation of British and other foreign exchanges.

The events of the last fortnight have disclosed that the Roosevelt administration, despite the innocent Hull pronouncements, is placing the chief emphasis on policies promoting recovery at home. As Moley's pre-conference radio address indicated, the President recognizes the arguments in favor of a national system of economics under prevailing world conditions.

FRANCE COMPETITOR

Although it appears to be the part of wisdom to retain discretion in currency and related matters, it does not seem to me necessary perpetually to depreciate the dollar.

Accordingly, I think the current nervousness over possible French monetary changes is rather superficial. France is not our chief international competitor, and furthermore, with our exports amounting to not more than 6 per cent of our national income, it is foolish to overemphasize the trade building value of a depreciated dollar.

To the extent that reflation is necessary, the paper dollar should be measured in terms of gold, rather than in terms of the French franc or any other gold standard currency.

MAN HOURS UP

That process entails the building up of a spiral of recovery.

Wage rate increases are necessary and desirable, but the increase in the volume of man hours employed is even more significant as a measure of nationwide purchasing power.

The gainfully employed will be benefited in ways not reflected in the statistical averages. They will be relieved of the burden of carrying unemployed relatives as the latter get an opportunity to return to work. In the actualities of the depression, those whose dollar wages were maintained did not benefit from a fall in the cost of living, because in almost every instance the gainfully employed were called upon informally to make contributions for the upkeep of their unemployed kin.

CAR LOADINGS TOP 600,000

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(INS)—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 24 totaled 604,668 cars, the American Railway Association announced yesterday, an increase of 16,737 cars above the preceding week, 105,675 above the same week in 1932, but a decrease of 154,695 under the same week in 1931.

Loading of all commodities increased over the preceding week, and all commodities except merchandise less than carload lot freight increased over the same week in 1932.

Miscellaneous freight, 231,966 cars, increase 2,450 and 41,963. Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight, 169,902, increase 1,372 and decrease of 4,465 cars. Grain and grain products, 38,341, increase of 194 and 10,731

Steel Rally Permits Harbison to Pay On Preferred

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE RALLY in steel mill production has been responsible for another bit of good news for stockholders in Pittsburgh district companies. Early in June the National Steel Corporation increased its quarterly dividend payments from 12½ cents a share to 25 cents a share. Yesterday the Harbison-Walker Refractories Company resumed dividend payments on its preferred stock.

Harbison directors declared a dividend of $1.50 a share on the preferred, payable July 20 to stock of record July 10.

The two previous quarterly dividend payments on this stock were omitted, owing to operating losses and the uncertain outlook for the fire brick industry.

The resumption of payments is accompanied by a general expectation that any further improvement in business will be followed by payments of accumulated dividends on the stock, which amount to $5 a share.

Company Regains Profitable Basis

HARBISON-WALKER established itself on a profitable basis early in the second quarter of the year. The report for the three months ended June 30 is expected to show a wide margin on the black ink side.

The spurt in demand for steel made it necessary for the steel companies to reline blast furnaces and open hearth furnaces which had been idle for many months. This resulted in a sudden increase in the purchases of fire brick and other refractory materials produced by Harbison-Walker.

The company's products are used in a wide range of other industries. These also have started buying fire brick to put operating units in working order, but steel has been the biggest customer during the past three months.

Preferred Stock Is Small Issue

THE COMPANY'S preferred stock issue is relatively small. It amounts to only $3,000,000. Dividend requirements of 6 per cent amount to $180,000 a year. Since there is no bonded indebtedness, only a small margin of profit is needed to pay the dividend.

At the end of 1932 the company owed $2,050,000 to banks. In addition, a subsidiary, the Harbison-Walker Securities Company owed $500,000 to banks on security loans. It is understood that the company has materially reduced this bank indebtedness. One of the principal investments of the securities company is a block of United States Steel common. The rise of the market value of this has materially improved the organization's financial position.

LEADER FINED IN UNION RIOT

Paul Herman, of 2165 Center avenue, whose alleged cuspidor hurling act precipitated a free-for-all fight at the business meeting of Local 44, Baker and Confectioner Workers of America, in a hall on the third floor of 1900 Center avenue yesterday, was fined $1 or five days in jail by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in night court. He was charged with disorderly conduct.

Thirty-one others, a few of them nursing black eyes and bruises, also charged with disorderly conduct, were discharged. Herman admitted hurling the cuspidor at one of the members. He said:

"I took the law into my own hands when he called me a scab. We were all prepared for a fight when we got there."

Testimony also disclosed the trouble began when a correction of the minutes was not approved.

One of the injured, Max Weisberg, told Magistrate Rothenberg he was struck in the face with a heavy chair. He was advised to file charges against his assailant before an alderman.

OBITUARY

Williams Funeral.

Funeral services for Waitman T. Williams, 72, who died yesterday at his home, Third avenue and Amity street, Homestead, will be held at the Gillen and Coulter funeral home, 322 East Third avenue, Homestead, at 1 p. m. Sunday. Burial will be in Uniontown Cemetery.

Mr. Williams, born in West Virginia, had lived 50 years in the Homestead district. He was a retired employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

He was a member of the Homestead Lodge No. 582, F. & A. M., a Shriner, member of Pittsburgh Consistory, and the Knights Templar.

James B. Criswell.

BUTLER, Pa., July 1.—Word has been received of the death in Knoxville, Tenn., of James B. Crisswell, former resident of this city. He was a member of the Tennessee State Board of Elections, and was active in Masonic affairs.

AVAGE PARADISE -:- Audacious Girl Reveals Secrets Of the Southern Seas -:- By MARGARET MATCHES

In half an hour I was seated once more at mess with my three original shipmates. It was nice to be alone again, the four of us.

The anchor was up and the engine throbbing. Once more we were headed into strange waters, beneath which lay another world far too lovely for words. As evening dropped, above us was the dusty splendor of the Milky Way, the serene white beauty of the Southern Cross, the brilliant cluster of the Pleiades. And around us closed the moonlit wonder of a tropic night. Small wonder that we four were happy.

That night Capt. Alys stood the 8-to-12 watch; I kept him company. At 11:30 he went below and opened a tin of asparagus, and we had a midnight feast. But in the meantime we had reverted once more to the subject of his dead wife.

The skipper was 42. He came of good English stock; his male forebears had, many of them been attached to the sea in some capacity, as sea captains, marine engineers, or navy men. His own father had been burned to death aboard a ship, trying to save others officer. So little Cyril Alys was sent for schooling to a famous old school in London. He must have been a sturdy, pudgy, droll little tyke in the traditional school uniform—long black coat, blue kneebreeches, mustard-colored stockings, and square-toed buckled shoes. His mother dreaded the call of the sea for him; it was in his blood. She and his uncles opposed his desire to be apprenticed to the sea; they wanted him to be a solicitor. So one day he up and ran away from school, with not a farthing to his name, nor other clothes than the quaintly fantastic outfit that he stood up in.

ACCEPTED ON BOAT

He was 14, and he looked about 10. Luck was with him, for a sailing ship was just about to set out across the world and her cook needed a boy. The captain, said skipper Alys, took a shrewd look at the earnest face gazing half fearfully and half hopefully up at him, and apparently saw a vision of himself just before his first voyage before the mast. Also, perhaps, the master of the old windjammer knew well that if he didn't take over the lad, that lad would find, somehow, somewhere, other means to get to sea. And the cook needed a boy very badly.

The skipper could laugh now, thirty years later, in telling about it, but the experience must have been rather severe for the carefully reared youngster. First of all, his clothes were a great trial to him. He was the butt of the forecastle. But wear the mustard stockings, and buckled shoes, and the blue breeches he must or go naked. In the weeks that followed he learned the mysteries of plum-duff and other dishes pertinent to seamen's diet; and, what's more, he shed his adolescent sensitiveness and softness; he also learned to hate the cook, whose bullying made his life a torment. So, at the end of a long voyage, he promptly deserted. The pay for his labors wasn't much, but he bought some new clothes and swaggered out into the world—a man at last.

MARRIED A NURSE

It was nearly two years before he found his way back to England again. By that time his mother and uncles were reconciled to his belonging to the sea. But, as a compromise, they agreed that he should go about it regularly, and the next time he sailed it was as an apprentice. In the course of time he gained his master's certificate.

Years later he was in Suva, Fiji. There his strange romance began. He fell in love with a young nurse, an Australian girl. Capt. Alys is a one-woman man. No other woman had ever made an impression on him. He married her in 1913. At that time he was master of a bark, with a route among the islands of Micronesia, his headquarters at Suva. These two devoted young people were popular among the happy-go-lucky social set of the colonial metropolis. One day Mrs. Alys was thrown by her horse, and was dragged for a distance on her head before the beast could be halted. A few weeks in the hospital, however, turned her out apparently as good as new.

Promptly upon England's entry into the war, Capt. Alys enlisted in naval service. She herself enlisted in the Red Cross. Despite the fact that she had a husband in active service, she succeeded in being sent abroad on duty. For more than two years the pair lost trace of each other; not even a relayed communication passed between them. Two years of intensely hazardous service were telling on Capt. Alys' nerves; at the end of that time he was temporarily transferred to the command of a hospital ship bound for Sydney. Stopping at Singapore, the ship picked up a group of disabled and shell-shocked nurses.

The day after leaving Singapore the captain and his staff made their usual rounds of the ship, and in the line-up of nurses, Capt. Alys suddenly came to a halt. His wife stood in the middle of the line looking at him with never a flicker of an eyelash. Remember, they hadn't seen each other in two years, and they had been perfect lovers. He stepped toward her eagerly, all war-time discipline for a second forgotten.

"Beth!" he said. She looked at him, answering nothing with eyes or tongue. He thought she was playing a soldier's part, that her silence was perhaps a rebuke to him for relaxing his official reserve. He passed on.

Later he called the matron to his cabin, and asked her to bring the girl to him. In a few minutes she stood before him; she looked well and was as beautiful as ever. She had followed the matron obediently like a little girl. He said, "Beth! Don't you know me? Why don't you speak to me!"

She looked at him as if she had never seen him before. He turned to the matron. "This is my wife!" The matron was skeptical; she had seen much in her time, and she wasn't gullible. So the distraught captain motioned to her to take the nurse away. Then, summoning the doctor in charge of the casualties aboard, he explained to him the incredible situation. The doctor, too, knew war-time humanity and had witnessed strange maneuvers to gain an end. "Well," he said, smiling, "you picked the prettiest girl in the lot."

When the doctor had convinced himself, he said gravely, "I'm sorry for you, Capt. Alys; her memory is gone, probably forever, and she has lost her power of speech."

FINANCED HOSPITAL

The skipper went on with his story to me: "I was stunned for a minute. You see, there had been times when the uncertainty of Beth's whereabouts had nearly driven me mad. Not a word of her since the time we said goodbye in Suva. But I had been certain that somehow everything would be all right again, and that we should go back to the old happiness together. And now this had happened."

He had asked the doctor: "What are you planning to do with her?"

The reply was that she was to be placed in one of the great Sydney hospitals, along with the rest of the shell-shocked patients.

"Not on your life," announced the little captain. "I'm going to take her; I can at least make her life as comfortable and happy as possible."

Before the ship reached Sydney, Capt. Alys called the matron. "How would you like to be head of a small private hospital?" he asked her. She said she would like it.

Back in Sydney, Capt. Alys set up, with part of his tidy fortune, a small hospital. The matron was head nurse, his wife the first patient. He spent his furlough by her side, trying to bring back to the clean slate of her memory some recognition of him and their happiness in Suva. She heard him, and looked at him with unpuzzled lack of comprehension, uttered no word, absolutely docile. Medical examination showed that it was doubtful, but not impossible, that something (perhaps a sudden shock or the abrupt coming upon something once very familiar) might restore her memory; and time and careful coaching might bring back her power of speech.

SURGEONS SUMMONED

Capt. Alys, when his furlough was up, went back to service. At the end of the war he returned swiftly to his wife, dedicating to her the rest of his life in memory of one year of unalloyed happiness. Now she was to him a helpless, very dear child. With infinite patience he tried to teach her to speak, and she did learn to talk again in a barely inarticulate fashion; but he always understood.

Whether or not a gleam of light penetrated her memory as to him it was difficult to tell. Certainly she at length knew a fondness for him, but it may have been born of constant association with the man who treated her with surpassing tenderness. She kept her splendid beauty, kept it absolutely unmarred by the traces that knowledge and care bring to a face. Her wealth of waving dark hair retained its luster and loveliness. She was no longer his mate, but he loved her as Pygmalion must have loved Galatea.

Eventually Capt. Alys took an apartment in Sydney for her, employing a housekeeper to look after Beth while he was busy during the day on a shore job with one of the shipping companies in Sydney. But that plan didn't work; the housekeeper didn't care as he thought she should for his wife. So he gave up all work and devoted himself entirely to his charge.

Finally a celebrated surgeon said it was possible that an operat on on Mrs. Alys' brain might bring back her memory. It was a very delicate operation, and he himself would not do it. A brain specialist, examining her, said there was a slight chance that such an operation would be successful, but the risk was too great. It was not performed. The specialist recommended, however, a return to Fiji, among the old and poignant surroundings; coming face to face with these things might pierce the cloud. Capt. Alys took Beth back to Suva.

She was not a helpless invalid; physically she was very well. She lived in the present, and enjoyed life very much in her own way, a childish way. She had always been a splendid needlewoman, always much interested in pretty clothes. She still was both. He kept her supplied with beautiful silks and other materials imported from China, and day after day she sat with her head bent over her sewing, greeting him or allowing his nearness with soulless acquiescence or with petulance if something irritated her. He was only a shadow at the threshold of her consciousness.

"For nearly twelve years she was like that," went on Capt. Alys. "I loved her. She had no husband and I had no wife. But she was content, and I was happy in serving her."

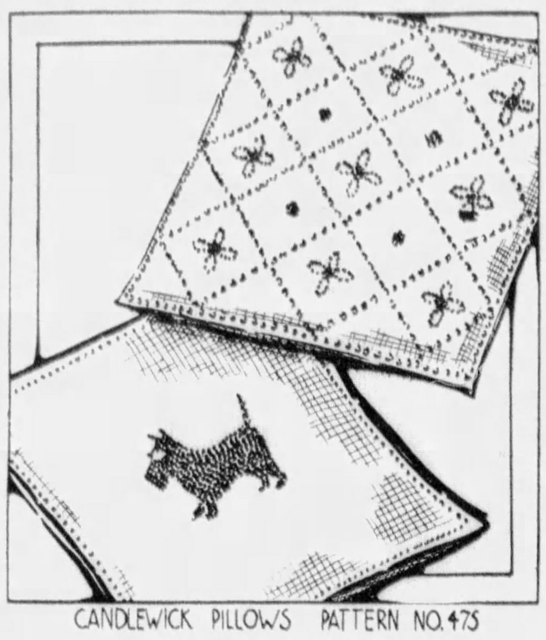
CANDLEWICK PILLOWS



CANDLEWICK PILLOWS PATTERN NO. 475

By LAURA WHEELER

Candlewicking has been a choice form of decoration from Colonial Days to the present time. Its newest place is on cushions that add beauty and comfort to bedroom or porch. In this pattern, the Colonial all-over pattern can be carried out entirely in candlewicking or in a combination of candlewicking and French knots. As it is very easy to dye candlewicking, this pillow could be made in two shades of one color. The ever-popular Scottie is most attractive done in candlewicking or French knots. Using the latter, the Scottie would make a very smart pillow if embroidered in wool in place of the wicking. The pillow tops are removable and washable. They make attractive articles for a church fair or gift. Pattern No. 475 includes a 12-inch square of the all-over pattern, a Scottie 4x5½ inches, as well as directions for doing candlewicking and making the pillows.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

They'll be along soon, fellows! We mean the circus and the Fourth of July—both coming on the same day. That's like having Christmas and a fellow's birthday both come on the same day, isn't it?

Ever since we heard about it, we have been trying to have either the fireworks or the circus come some other time, but we couldn't do it. Maybe some of the clowns will put off some firecrackers, and help us celebrate the Fourth of July right inside the big tent.

Junior has the measles, the doctor says, so it's pretty sure that he will miss it. But Spike and Snuggins will be there and they told us today that they are going to keep their eyes wider open than ever and try their best to see all three rings at once! That's so they will have more to tell Junior when they see him.

come to town on the train. One of the very biggest elephants almost broke loose, but his master soon had him chained up again, and so everything was all right. Most elephants are nice, big, gentle animals if they are treated kindly, and books tell us that in some countries elephants do much heavy work.

For instance, they carry trees to lumber yards, and in some places they carry little carriages on their backs in which people can ride. Even the elephants in the show aren't just for show. They help pull the big wagons, and drag the canvas for the tents and do many other useful things.

But the only work the lions and tigers do is tricks. They jump through hoops and walk on big balls, if they have been trained to do it. But Snuggins is right. He says that he isn't afraid of lions or tigers just as long as they are behind steel bars.

No good Junior Patrol member will tease captive animals. Most of them would like to go back to their native jungles and we should treat them as kindly as we can while they are here for us to see.

And by the way, kids, these wild animals are not half as dangerous as the automobiles we ride in almost every day. Not that the automobiles are dangerous to the riders, but they are dangerous to careless children who dart onto the street without looking either way. According to safety records, more youngsters have been killed and injured this year than last. This is not so good, but Junior Patrol members can help remedy matters. Listen to what Richard Kifer and his patrol are doing. In his letter he says:

That is a very good idea and all members of the Junior Patrol should get back of the safety drive. Not only should we try to help others observe safety rules, but we must also be sure we observe the rules ourselves.

Spike

Dick also writes:

"Please send me 17 Junior Patrol pins and cards. My captain is Charles Manning and my first lieutenant is Frank Haggerty. Please send me the badges as soon as possible. I have rules for my patrol."

That's a very nice letter, Dick. Now come on, all you members, let's hear from you, too!

And say, fellows, how many mushball teams have you formed? You know it's lots of fun to play that game and it's healthy.

We know that many of you boys won't have anything to do this vacation, but here's a profitable way to spend your time. Why not build club houses? It's twice as much fun with a club house of your own. All of you can get old lumber, and with the whole bunch working the shed can be built in little time. Ask the grocer or druggist for cardboard boxes and nail them on the walls. Put in bookshelves and books, and you will have a meeting place all winter.

FRISBY EXPLAINS HIS TAX RETURNS

WASHINGTON—Horace Walpole Frisby took the witness stand yesterday before the Senate Banking Committee. Although his hands fluttered, and he gulped and stammered frequently, everyone remarked that he has a great personality.

"Why did you make out your income tax return in the Chinese language?" asked the committee counsel.

"Is it not true that you contracted with the government to remove any dead horses or cats from the streets at fifty cents each?" asked counsel.

"Did not the government pay you $37,500 in fees?"

"Yes."

"But your return, according to our translation, merely mentions $3.50 for this service.

"Well," said Frisby, "I only put down my net gain. My capital losses were enormous. I had to buy dead horses, cats and dogs from other cities, ship them here, and have my son-in-law distribute them throughout the city. Then my wife would call up and complain about a dead quadruped at such and such an address. The health department would call me back and ask me to remove the same. I fulfilled my duties and collected my fees, but you can see for yourself that if I have to ship in a dead cat from Montana, distribute it, and get only 50 cents for the collection, I suffered a capital loss on the freight."

It was unanimously agreed that Frisby was within his rights technically, although it was hinted that he used the same cat and horse over and over again.

Judge, Just a Minute!

Nice news for the owners of porcelain choppers. Expert judi decrees that the dentist does not have to pay the beauty tax c false teeth.

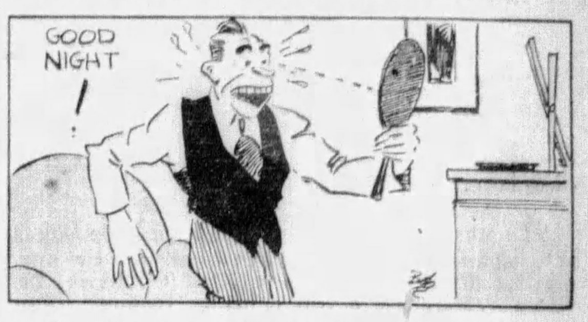
That's something to show your fangs over. The learned deci sion was handed down in New York City and will affect everybod who cobs on the corn.

The judge says the dentist is only a repair man. A skilled mechanic. The tax must be paid by the ultimate consumer. If George Washington had known that he would have fought twice as hard.

The father of our nation wore upper and lower wolf traps. They don't show in his portraits because in Colonial days they had no news reel photographers to panorama you in an unguarded moment.

The effect of artificial snappers is to round out your northern lip like a crown fender. We wear 'em and we know. Every night we launch them into a glass of water and holler, "Sink or swim."

Every morn we harpoon them with a button hook. But we got the form fitting piano keys before there was a tax on them.



The public assessment on private biting gears is not annoying because of the money involved but because of the disturbing thought that nothing is sacred any more.

What are they going to think of next? Why doesn't the dentist kick in with the tax? If not the entire amount, you would think that he would be willing enough to pay for his share of the fun.

We desire that the judge give us another whack at the decision before it becomes a law.

Otherwise, we may have the astonishment of seeing 48 full grown states voting to remove an amendment on false teeth from the dignified Constitution of the U. S. A.

Stranger things than that have happened and not to strangers.

Think it over, your honor. Have a good night's sleep over it. You may see your dentist twice a year. But you have to look at us every day.

Keep the Fourth Safe

American People Are Beginning To Realize The Folly Of Endangering Lives.

Accidental deaths usually reach their high point for the year on July 4. The celebration of a patriotic occasion is not enhanced by exposing thousands of children and grown-ups to needless dangers. It has taken many years of effort, but the American people are beginning to realize the importance of a safe and sane Fourth.

Director of Public Safety Harmar D. Denny, Jr., has announced that his department will do all in its power to enforce the fireworks ordinance of 1931. But more than this will be needed. Parents must prevent the use of fireworks by their children. The mere fun in making a noise is not great enough to warrant exposing children to the danger of serious injury or possible death.

The sensible way to observe Independence Day is not to use fireworks but, if you must endanger your own safety or that of your children, at least follow the advice of Dr. William W. McFarland, director of health. He says: "Play safe on the Fourth and get medical attention at once for fireworks injuries, no matter how trivial. The only way to combat lockjaw is early inoculation of tetanus anti-toxin."

The recommendation of the Better Traffic Committee for the development of a grade separation plan at the south end of the Liberty Tubes to be included in the National Recovery Act public works program for the city and county is worthy of serious consideration. A difficult traffic problem is presented by the convergence of Saw Mill Run boulevard, West Liberty avenue and Warrington avenue at the entrance of the tubes.

The fact that it was necessary to bring state police into the city this week to raid a notorious vice resort on the North Side, again calls attention to the fact that city police officials either are surprisingly negligent or else are dominated by those in control of the city's underworld. This was the second instance where state police had to be used to do the work of city police. The previous case was the raid on the famous Monaca Club.

The announcement by District Attorney Andrew T. Park that he would follow up with prosecutions of election law violators who escape indictment through the limitation of federal statutes indicates that proper co-operation is to be given to federal authorities in assuring honest elections in the future. It is to be hoped that the action will be vigorous.

The state Department of Labor and Industry has presented some encouraging news. The department estimated that unemployment stood at 1,314,835 for the state in May. This was a decrease of 31,714 from April and a decrease of 64,516 from the peak figure reached in March.

Decision of the Supreme Court ousting Dr. Clyde L. King as chairman of the Public Service Commission is a victory for Gov. Pinchot. By its decision the court held that Public Service Commissioners were to be treated as other executive appointees, that if they were not confirmed by the Senate their terms automatically expired with the adjournment of the Senate. It had been the contention of King—and the Republican organization, with which he was not affiliated—that only positive Senate action could remove a commissioner, once he had been named.

The decision climaxes a bitter and sudden feud between the Governor and King, once the closest of friends. The Governor said King had ceased to be useful as a public servant because he said there was no more need for a Senate inquiry into utility affairs. King said his trouble was due to refusal to use the commission as a Pinchot patronage vehicle. The court, of course, rendered no opinion on this conflict of reasons, confining itself to an interpretation of the law.

The 35 state banks in Western Pennsylvania operating under the Sordoni Act—allowing them to refuse to pay deposits while they try to re-establish their liquidity—have until the middle of September to reopen. The act allows them six months on a restricted basis although the Governor can extend the period to 18. With the rising security markets of the past three months and a general betterment of business, many should be able to reopen before the expiration of the six months period. All practical haste should be made.

Some restricted institutions—both state and national—will never be able to reopen. These should be placed under able receivers and liquidated. Dividends on deposits should be paid quickly in order to free as much money as possible to aid the revival of business. Where necessary to save depositors from loss, there should be no hesitation in assessing stockholders.

Indeed, conscientious stockholders in trust companies might be expected to donate sums equal to their assessments where it would save depositors from loss. This might well be their attitude because of a recent court decision that stockholders of trust companies cannot be forced to pay assessments.

State Senator Coyne is quoted as saying he is "not dumb enough to try that" in answer to the indictment returned against him for election cheating. Well, it's a hopeful sign when a political boss realizes that such things are "dumb," and it would be fine if he could make all other politicians think the same way.

With its important indorsement of the City Planning Commission's design for wharf improvement, estimated to cost $4,500,000, the Chamber of Commerce adds the weight of civic support to a project which appears to be in line with federal policy of public works.

The advice not to take wooden money would be poor in Blaine, Wash., where they actually used spruce dollars, pine quarters and halves to facilitate trade when regular currency became scarce. It is among the many interesting things described in the American Weekly, which will be included in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

The American Weekly also contains an amazing description of what is said to be the Nazi program for women under the Hitler regime in Germany. According to this idea the home is the place for women, but not all of them would be permitted to become heads of homes. Some would not even be allowed to marry, and merely would be servants.

Among other highly interesting articles in the American Weekly are those about a British duke, who "takes in boarders" in his historic castle; a social leader in America who "hires out" as a servant; a man who has 10 jobs despite what has been called the depression; style reviews, menu suggestions and up-to-date fiction.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 1.—No nearby escape from New York offers the cheery simplicity of that Westchester valley, Sleepy Hollow, so immortalized by Washington Irving. Despite proximity to fashionable Tarrytown and the landscaped arcadia of the Rockefeller estate it's still aglow with the long ago.

There is languor in the air. At every turn in the road one somehow expects to give way to ancient stage coach. Or hear the zing of the village smithy. I left my companions at the entrance of the Sleepy Hollow Club and set off afoot with a stout stick.

No complement for walking a dusty lane equals the blackthorn. It's a cane that becomes a personal friend. Somewhere down a lush green slope I picked up a black Lull dog, a female of doubtful ancestry, an accomplished walker who ran ahead, barked and then came quietly to heel.

Some horseback riders, flushed with gallop, cantered by and called "Hello Mary!" familiarly to the dog. She wheeled to follow, then as suddenly jogged on with me. I was immeasurably flattered, scratched her behind an ear and we were off again. Every community has its Everybody's Dog.

* * *

Mary, I imagine, is Sleepy Hollow's. She faintly savored of the stables. Once she chivied up a squirrel in a cluster of maples and the hillsides rang with her barks as the squirrel danced impertinently out on a bough—safe! But Mary was not confused by bewildering frustrations that slow up mankind. She hurried on, wagging. She knows there are other squirrels.

* * *

Fixing a fence at one meadow side was a lack-luster worker with a grizzle of beard and Lincolnian gravity. He, too, recognized Mary. "You know this dog?" I inquired. "She belongs over thar to the riding academy," he said. And scanned clouds weather-wise for rain.

* * *

Valleys always tingle sentiment. I was reared in the Ohio Valley surrounded by native and West Virginia hills. The prophets come from the mountains and dreamers from the dales. Trudging along I was brought up short by the jingle of a bicycle bell. Through poplar-silvery foliage a girl flew along a cinder path. A maid with perplexed set face of one expecting a spill. Mary cocked her ears toward the road. I hoped she would not desert and she didn't.

* * *

On one sweep of greensward was a birch, a century old perhaps, and I stretched on my back to relax. Mary a few feet away turned gingerly in that atavistic circle peculiar to dogs making bed in high grass. Thoughts simmer to simplicity under the open sky. For no reason I recalled grandma's ditty-box where she kept the mottled goosebone with which she unfailingly foretold seasons.

* * *

Meaningless remembrances flitted corridors of memory. The ice pier back of the Riverview Hotel off which we dived a la naturel. Boone, the hypnotist, and his Prince Albert and high hat of gold broadcloth. Miss Eliza Sanns and her Paisley shawl rocking on her Court street porch. Basil Duke, the traveling man from Cincinnati. Capt. Rafe Hamilton and the ferry Champion. Alum Rock where Pedro Joe gathered pennyroyal. Noah's Ark, the quaintly named charabanc from Bladen. The young doctor nick-named Peeny-winkle Fog Eye. And very suddenly the world trembled away. I awoke with a start. There was a swishing noise. Vaguely I thought of the headless horseman in the legend of Sleepy Hollow. Mary was licking my face impatient to be off.

* * *

We skirted the woods instead of plunging into them again. Going through the same woods the same day is like seeing a play twice the same night. A scouring chill had crept into the upland air. At one cross path Mary stopped, looked at me with solemn eyes, and trotted off at right angles. Once or twice she looked back but succumbed to some stronger appeal. I like to think it was hunger for her evening meal. I'll be days forgetting Mary.

* * *

In the opal-grey dusk to the dinner on a club veranda, listening glumly to the tilting of light platitudes of a world removed from Sleepy Hollow's tempo, someone mentioned my dourness. "Don't bother the Park avenue naturalist," said my wife with faint mockery. "He feels woodsey!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I was sick, and Alice Lonergan sent me this—a Catholic prayer.

I'm not a Catholic, but need that make a difference? After all, what does "catholic" mean? Universal. And, heaven knows, sickness is universal — and heart break—and lonely nights when there's no one to listen but the stars, and the stars are far away.

So, perhaps, since pain is nonsectarian, prayer is, too. Simply a cry of the heart of God, who never turns anyone away. And even a creedless wanderer like myself may be able to understand that cry as well as an archbishop.

That's why I'm handing this prayer on to you, and you; to all who are sick and weary and afraid. With a humble hope that I may have helped it on its way.

"PRAYER TO THE SACRED HEART!"

"O SACRED HEART OF JESUS, I HAVE ASKED YOU FOR MANY FAVORS, BUT I PLEAD TO YOU FOR THIS ONE."

How dare I come? Because You also walked this same sad trail. You, too, were poor, and knew the long, hard grind of toil. Backache and heart-ache, terror and fierce pain, and loneliness as cruel as any cross—they say, Christ Jesus, that You knew them all.

And did You, sometimes, wonder where to turn? And found no human wise enough to solve Your need—or kind enough to soothe away Your pain—or strong enough to lift Your dreadful load? And so You went "a little way apart," and knelt to God and asked Him for His help.

Then, for the sake of Your own human need, and in the memory of Your own dark hour, hear me in this dark hour which I must face. And take this prayer!

"TAKE IT, PLACE IT IN YOUR OPEN, BROKEN HEART, AND WHEN THE ETERNAL FATHER SEES IT COVERED WITH THE MANTLE OF YOUR MOST PRECIOUS BLOOD HE WILL NOT REFUSE IT."

Your "open, broken heart." Can hearts be open till they're broken, Christ? You broke Your heart for all humanity—and by that breaking made it wide enough to hold all pain and understand each suffering mortal's need.

And so that understanding bears the print of Your own blood, the stain of all Your earthly sweat and tears, that link You, always, with poor souls like me.

Then, Jesus, since you, too, were once a man, be kind to me who still am shackled here. And, as my brother, help me make this prayer!

"IT IS NOT MY PRAYER BUT YOURS, O SACRED HEART OF JESUS. I PLACE ALL MY TRUST IN THEE—HAVE MERCY ON ME AND GRANT THIS REQUEST."

I give my need to You and, in the giving, find the plea has changed. No longer is it measured by my life's small span. But now it is a part of Your great plan. All that is true within it is a part of Your own truth. All that is tender shines with Your own love. My plea will serve me only if it serves all men. And so my prayer is part of Your own vision, Christ.

Then hear and help me, if it can be done!

Because You once were partly man, dear Lord—because, with all my weakness, I am partly God—I dare to give my need to Your great heart, and cry, as You once in the darkness cried:

"Yet, if it may not, then Thy will be done!"

By EDWIN C. HILL

THE blood spurts from a hideous gash in the boy's face. His head is back, the neck resting on the top of the chair. His hands, in an agonizing grip, clench the sides of the seat. A doctor works on the wound. Slowly, so slowly, stitch after stitch, he sews.

The boy is conscious. He has received neither anesthetic nor sedative and will get none. He must not scream. He must not weep. Such weakness is against the code.

The ghastly job is done. The doctor calmly cleans his knives. "Oh," he says, with a shrug, in answer to a question, "that is not so bad. We do have worse cases."

The others in the small hall have been mildly interested. It is a commonplace happening in their young lives, certainly nothing to stop their chattering and jesting. Some secretly envy the wounded Adolph. He will have such a beautiful scar when the stitches are out and the bandages off. And what a swagger he can affect, now that he carries the mark which the government of Herr Hitler has declared to be the badge of honor for the young manhood of the country.

Yes, the German Junkers have lifted the ban on dueling. At Heidelberg, Bonn and Cologne the streets soon will be filled wth arrogant young men, glorying in the horrible mutilation of faces, by suffering which they believe they have steeled their body and spirit. These rulers of Germany, who would go back to Wotan and the other gods of Attila and Alaric, thus revive another old Teutonic custom, long abandoned and condemned by peoples who consider themselves enlightened at least to the point that they no longer consider that might is right.

Death Penalty Decreed For Dueling

THE trial by combat originated in the Germanic tribes, and, finding its way into the other parts of Europe, reached unbridled proportions in the Middle Ages. Scott gives us the picture of it in England when he has Wilfred of Ivanhoe enter the lists against The Templar as the champion of Rebecca of York. Nor do Dumas in "The Three Musketeers" and Rostand in "Cyrano de Bergerac" exaggerate conditions in France. The gallants of Paris in the early years of the seventeenth century scarcely did anything else but fight. Dueling was the sole topic of conversation the whole livelong day until the all-powerful Richelieu cried a halt to it. He was moved, he said, by moral reasons.

Indeed, the Church in the Council of Trent did brand dueling an invention of the devil, designed to rob men of both body and soul. However, some think that the Cardinal was moved more by the fact that his own brother, the eldest and head of his house, had been stabbed to the heart by an enemy of the Cardinal's.

Whatever the reason, King Louis the Thirteenth, in 1626, decreed the death penalty for dueling and soon found an opportunity to prove that when he said death he meant just that. The swashbuckling Count de Bouteeville, with a record of 21 affairs of honor, felt compelled to stage a twenty-second, and to choose midday in the Place Royal as the scene of combat. The Count reckoned on the power and influence of his house, and he reckoned in vain. That was his last duel. He and his second were seized and were beheaded on June 21, 1627.

Wholesale swordsplay in public was not fashionable after that, but dueling continued privately and on a restricted scale in France up until the beginning of the World War. Many and tragic have been the encounters at dawn in the Bois de Boulogne in these later years, with politicians and journalists particularly addicted to this method of settling their quarrels.

Hamilton Mortally Wounded in Duel

PISTOLS in the morning were not uncommon in England during the eighteenth and part of the nineteenth centuries. Sheridan, Pitt, Castelreagh and Wellington all fought duels, while a rare and unique legal case bearing on the subject engrossed England in 1817. One Thornton was accused of the murder of Mary Ashford. He demanded a trial by combat rather than by a jury of his peers, and he challenged his accuser, the brother of the girl. The court solemnly ruled that he was within his right, that such was the law of England. When the challenge was declined Thornton had to be freed under the law, which was then immediately repealed. Queen Victoria put an end to the foolishness of dueling by declining to receive at court anyone who had participated in a duel, and by cashiering officers in the army and navy who engaged in one.

The United States, early in its history, received a salutary lesson. Two men faced each other at 30 paces on a green field overlooking the lordly Hudson on the morning of July 12, 1804. Both had been gallant, able soldiers, high-ranking officers of the Continental Army. One had been a standby of Washington's in the creation of the government and his Secretary of the Treasury. The other, by the slightest of margins, had lost the presidency to Thomas Jefferson. Aaron Burr's bullet carried true and Alexander Hamilton fell mortally wounded on the very spot where his 20-year-old boy had been killed a short time before.

Even in Imperial Germany dueling became scandalous. The German Republic put an official ban on Mensurem, as student dueling is known, by legislating it to be felonious assault, and the law was enforced even as late as 1930, when eight students went to jail for violating it. However, at that very time 12 fighting corps were meeting secretly in Berlin.

Now the lid is off. German militarism seems to be in the making again. The Hitlerites glorify dueling as an essential to the development of a manly, martial spirit. They forget that such a good judge as Napoleon Bonaparte once said: "A good duelist is a bad soldier." The same little corporal, when challenged by the King of Sweden, replied that he would send a fencing master to give the King a good match. And the Prussian Guards must remember, even as you and I remember, how in Belleau Wood in June, 1918, there were thousands of young men who had never handled a Schlaeger, and yet for all that lacked nothing in manly martial spirit.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You are beginning to realize what savings you might have made from the income you once had.

A little self-denial might have greatly increased your hoard.

The cost of living is much less than in those days, that is true, but still you had more then, and less outlay.

The lowered living cost does not make up for loss of work or curtailed income which you must now consider.

If you had watched expenditures as you do now there would have been considerable difference in your financial condition.

You think that if you ever regain an earning point approaching the wages or salary you had a few years ago, that you will be wiser and save more.

Then don't grumble now while you pinch a few nickels to meet your obligations day after day.

If you don't get satisfaction from the good time you had once, it is about all you will have to fall back on from the past.

Isn't It So?

He that has a head of wax must not walk in the sun.

Change is not made without inconvenience, even from worse to better.
